Report Goering, Himmler to Boss Defence of Italy

LONDON, May 11.—(CP)—A Moscow broadcast recorded here today by the Soviet Monitor said that Field Marshal Herman Goering and Heinrich Himmler, head of the Nazi secret police, are going to Rome to take over the defence of Italy. The broadcast credited a Russian News Agency dispatch from Berne, Switzerland.

The dispatch said that reorganization of the Italian army, inspection of the air force, airdromes, and naval bases, and fortifications have been entrusted to Goering, while Himmler will try to bring about "stabilization of the internal front" through a drastic purge of the armed forces, state institutions, corporations and the Fascist party.

The Russian news agency said the two Nazis would leave shortly to confer with Mussolini and would remain for a long time to direct "emergency measures."

REPORTED IN ROME

An earlier Moscow broadcast last night heard by Reuters News Agency said Goering already was in Rome.

The earlier broadcast said Goering had a long interview with Mussolini. Afterwards the Italian government was said to have met secretly. This broadcast, not reported by other sources, said Goer-

Dress Rehearsal

The Story of Dieppe

By Quentin Reynolds

Copyright, 1943, by Random House Inc.

Here is the eleventh instalment of Quentin Reynolds' latest book "Dress Rehearsal" for which The Bulletin has secured exclusive publication rights. This book by the famous war correspondent is a stirring eyewitness account of the raid on Dieppe—the first air-land-sea performance in European theatre of war.—EDITOR.

Chapter VI.

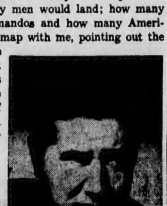
The time for keeping secrets had passed, and now Roberts and Cole told me the whole story of the operation. They told me just how many men would land; how many Canadians; how many Commandos and how many Americans. Roberts went over the map with me, pointing out the two six-inch gun batteries the Germans had flanking Dieppe. These would be the objectives of the Commandos, and the whole success or failure of the raid would depend upon whether or not they did their job.



QUENTIN REYNOLDS

"Suppose everything goes according to plan," I asked, "and you are able to take and hold Dieppe? Is there any thought of establishing a permanent bridgehead? Are reserves and reinforcements ready to come over quickly to consolidate the position?"

"No," he smiled. "This definitely is not a second front. We have food, medical supplies, ammunition only for one day. This is a thrust, not a real

Report F.D.R., Churchill May Plan Meeting

LONDON, May 11—(CP)—Under the headline "Churchill and F.D.R. May Meet," Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard today quoted a New York Herald Tribune dispatch from Washington which said observers believed that Allied successes in North Africa would be followed by American and British conferences to determine where the Axis will be hit next.

No other newspaper in London printed such a dispatch and there was no official comment on it whatsoever.

The logic of holding another Anglo-American conference to bring Allied strategy up to date with the latest military developments is widely accepted in London.

Ryan Brothers Buy Arlington Block

One of Edmonton's most popular apartment blocks, the Arlington, situated at 106 street and 100 avenue, has been sold to Ryan Brothers, M. L. "Mickey" and Pat Ryan, the purchase price being reported as $80,000.

Negotiations for the deal were completed on Monday, it was stated, and the necessary papers are now being completed for the transfer of the property. This will likely take place on Saturday.

It is understood that no change in the policy of rentals will take place. Recently there have been rumors that the property was being purchased on behalf of American interests, but these dealings fell through.

Workmen Find Bones of Five By River Side

Bones of five humans were unearthed Monday during excavation operations by a gang of workmen from the city electric light department engaged in the building of underground lines from the city power plant to the city's light feeder system.

The discovery was made in the vicinity of the 105 street bridge. All were in decayed coffins that crumbled to dust when air penetrated to them.

The unearthing of the remains was immediately reported to the city commissioners and plans are now being made to have them reinterred.

Old timers questioned regarding the existence of a burial ground in this district failed to recall its use in the pioneer days in Edmonton, and expressed the opinion that the burial ground may have been utilized in the early days of Fort Edmonton.

BRITISH TROOPS MAY BE POINTED FOR MARTINIQUE

BRIDGETOWN, Barbados, May 11.—(AP)—Reuters News Agency reported tonight that a detachment of the Barbados Battalion of the South Caribbean Force "had embarked for Dominica in connection with the Martinique situation."

Reuters quoted an "official statement."

Dominica is the nearest British island north of Martinique, 35 miles away.

Martinique is the French possession ruled by Admiral Georges Robert, with whom the United States recently severed relations because of his refusal to co-operate with the Allies.

Wrecked Vessel Was Not in Fit Condition to Sail

OTTAWA, May 11. — (CP) — The steamship "Northholm," wrecked Jan. 16 on the Pacific coast with a loss of 15 lives, was "not in a fit condition to proceed on the contemplated voyage" when it left Port Alice for Vancouver, it was found by court of investigation, the report of which was announced today by Transport Minister Michaud.

The court attributed the ship's condition to the way the cargo was loaded and said this was "at least a contributing factor to the disaster that followed."

Nazis in Zaghouan Mountains Request Terms of Armistice

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, North Africa, May 11.—Organized resistance of isolated Axis armies on Cap Bon was collapsing today as hopes of an escape by sea were crushed.

(According to Radio Algiers, the "last tank battle of the North African campaign" was being fought at the base of the peninsula between British armored units and remnants of the German 10th armored division.)

The Germans on Cap Bon peninsula, cut off by the British advance to Hammamet, "just lost their nerve" under 48 hours of heavy air attack despite messages of encouragement from Hitler and Mussolini, a spokesman said. They are surrendering by whole companies without a last ditch fight.

(A French communique broadcast from Algiers said that German forces in the Zaghouan mountains in the pocket southwest of Cap Bon had asked for an armistice. The French reply had been that the terms were unconditional surrender according to the Casablanca formula.

(Meanwhile, a Reuters' News Agency despatch from Allied Headquarters said the number of prisoners taken was mounting hourly and was rapidly approaching 100,000.)

The Axis forces trapped and cut into sections in the Cap Bon zone and in the mountains east of Zaghouan had been estimated at from 50,000 to 100,000, the strongest and most compact group appeared to be in the Zaghouan area.

"Resistance is especially fierce on the Eighth Army front," the spokesman said in reference to the southern or Zaghouan zone. About 700 square miles in all were still occupied by scattered Axis forces, following the British drive across the base of the Cap Bon Peninsula, capturing Soliman, Menzel Bou Seifa and Grombarlia and pushing on to Hammamet.

HEAVY ASSAULTS

The enemy in the hills of the south front was being heavily attacked from the south by the Eighth Army and from the west and north by British First Army tanks.

The best German troops were in this action and their strong hill positions made it probable that some time would be required to mop them up. But official advices said that the enemy troops trapped on Cap Bon were mostly second line and communications soldiers and that their morale

16 Persons Killed By Nazi Raiders

LONDON, May 11.—Sixteen persons were killed in an East Anglian coast town today when German planes bombed a building housing girl members of the Auxiliary Territorial Service.

The building was demolished and it was feared that there were other casualties.

Fifteen Focke Wulf fighter bombers attacked the town this morning, bombing the residential section and machine-gunning the streets.

A search was underway for other A.T.S. girls known to have been in the building.

Many houses were damaged and five bodies were recovered from private residences.

Gen. Rommel in Germany Since Mar. 11: Berlin

LONDON, May 11.—(CP)—Marshal Erwin Rommel, Axis Africa Corps commander, has been in Germany since March 11 and will receive "a new task after complete recovery" of his health, the German high command said tonight in a statement broadcast from Berlin.

The statement, heard by Reuters, said that Rommel was in Germany when the British 8th Army cracked the Axis lines of his Africa Corps in Egypt at El Alamein, to begin its unprecedented 2,000-mile advance across North Africa.

"His long stay in Africa had such a serious effect on his health that medical treatment could not longer be avoided," the high command statement said. "When the first news of the British attack at El Alamein arrived, the field marshal,

70.6 Per Cent Quota

Northern Alberta Invests $9,014,900 in Victory During 13 Days of Drive

Fourth Victory Loan sales in Northern Alberta, up to the close of business on the 13th day of the campaign, amounted to $9,014,900, or 70.6 per cent of the $12,769,000 quota set for the northern part of the province. The number of sales made was 24,752. This is 374 behind the quota for the number of subscribers.

Sales in Alberta up to close of business Monday evening amounted to $23,481,200, or 71.2 per cent of the $33,000,000 quota for the province. Monday the sales amounted to $1,326,850.

Sales of the Fourth Victory Loan in Edmonton reached 70.5 per cent of the $8,805,000 quota set for the city as 1,065 purchasers bought $235,950 worth of bonds Monday to bring the total sales at the close of the 13th day of the campaign to $6,211,250. The number of subscriptions taken to the loan in the 13-day period was 10,849. This is 3,374 below the individual investors' quota set for the city.

General sales up to Monday night amounted to $2,723,650, or 59.2 per cent of the $4,600,000 quota set for this division.

Loan headquarters announced that four more rural divisions had reached their objectives, and were now working on new self-imposed quotas. They are Hughenden, with 110 per cent of its $35,000 quota; Vermilion with 104 per cent of its

LONDON, May 11.—(CP)—Big formations of Allied bombers and fighters resumed daylight smashes at the continent today after a weather-bound week-end.

Monday Bond Sales Lowest Of Campaign

OTTAWA, May 11 — (CP) — Monday sales of Fourth Victory loan bonds totalled $49,882,800 to raise the cumulative total for the first 13 business days of the three-week campaign to $372,902,400—about $300,000,000 short of the minimum objective of $1,100,000,000—the national war finance committee announced today.

The cumulative total for the corresponding period of last autumn's third victory loan drive was $661,281,700 but the objective then was only $750,000,000.

Led by a $5,000,000 subscription from the government of Ontario, yesterday's loan subscriptions totalled $49,882,800—the lowest day so far in the current campaign. It compares with $51,999,900 on the corresponding day of the Third Victory loan.

Prior to the Fourth Victory Loan, Ontario funds, by law, could only be invested in Ontario securities. A change in this law enabled the Gratifying performance of Allied airplanes in the subzero temperatures of the far north last winter was largely attributable to the extensive research carried on at Ladd Field, Alaska, it was intimated Monday by Colonel Dale V. Gaffney, new commanding officer of the Alaska Wing of the U.S. Army Air Force Transport Command, who officially took over his new post at U.S. headquarters at the airport.

Alaska Wing Commander Of U.S. Army Air Force Takes Over New Post

Ladd Field, at Fairbanks, was the last command of Col. Gaffney, who was transferred here to take the place of Colonel Thomas L. Mosley, posted to new duties in recent weeks.

The new commanding officer formally assumed his new duties Monday afternoon, taking over from Lt. Col. Frank N. Nightingale, in temporary command since Col. Mosley left.

AIDES INTRODUCED

The new U.S. commander, who is in charge of all operations of the Alaska wing of the Transport Command, from Edmonton to the Aleutian Islands, granted a cheery interview to representatives of the Edmonton press and at the same time introduced several of his aides to the newspapermen.

"The Japs are being taken care of in the Aleutians," was the curt but reassuring word of the situation out along the fog-enshrouded chain of islands, reaching in a menacing finger toward Tokyo. The officer did not elaborate on this subject, but told reporters he

Appear "Hit on Head"

Germans Dazed by Tunisia Defeat

BERNE, May 11.—(AP)—The bulk of the Germans at home are "walking around as though hit on the head" at the news of the Allied triumph in North Africa, a Berlin dispatch said last night.

At the same time it was disclosed that the Allied successes were a signal for increased resistance in France against the occupation troops.

CAME AS SHOCK

The Berne Der Bund declared that the American fighting ability, which "had not been held highly by Berlin," came as a shock to all Axis military leaders.

In Berlin yesterday, one correspondent said many asking.

"How could it have happened—what will be the fate of the Africa Corps'"

The German press, the writer said, had kept up until the last minute "hopes which were not to be confirmed."

Dispatches to neutral newspapers told of a series of incidents touched off in France by the Allied victory.

A frontier dispatch to the Gazette de Lausanne said two Italian officers were wounded at Nice in retaliation for establishment of a curfew under which 2,000 persons in the city had been fined 2,000,000 francs.

At Lyon a German soldier was killed, and several others were wounded. A curfew there closed all theatres, cinemas and public meeting places.

MAJOR FOUND DEAD

At Clermon-Ferrand a German major was found dead during the early morning, a bullet in his head, some reports said.

A dispatch to the Tribune de Geneve from Lyon said French railroads had announced, effective May 17, that a demarcation line would separate the Italian occupied zone from the remainder of France.

quota of $130,000; Tofield with 107 per cent of a $58,000 quota and Athabasca just over the $63,000 quota set for the district.

Sales in rural districts on Monday totalled $258,750, with 1,644 individuals subscribing. This brings the total for the 13 days of the campaign to $2,803,550, or 70.7 per cent of the $3,964,000 quota set for rural Northern Alberta.

EXCESS OF QUOTA

The sales to date in the loan are now in excess of the quota set for the rural divisions in the Third Victory Loan, and are $1,459,650 ahead of the sales on the 13th day of that campaign.

The number of subscribers to this loan in the rural areas is 13,902, while in the Third Victory Loan for the 13 days of that campaign, the number was 7,267. The increase in subscribers between this and the Third Loan is 6,636.

Edmonton's R.C.A.F. depots continue to set a blazing pace in selling. No. 4 Initial Training School reported Tuesday morning that sales now totalled $63,0000, and that a new objective had been set for the depot.

From the No. 3 "M" Depot comes the report that quotas are quickly smashed as they are made. Monday sales amounted to $7,000 to bring the depot's total to $47,000 on a $30,000 quota. The canvassers in this depot are making a determined effort to pass the $50,000 mark by a substantial margin.

At Vermilion in the C.W.A.C. training centre the $8,000 quota set for the depot has been doubled and subscriptions are now well past the $16,000 mark.

This response to the loan by the C.W.A.C. depot had a direct bearing on the increasing of a Vermilion sale on Saturday. A man came to sales depot to make a purchase. He asked for a $100 bond, and produced cash to pay for it.

As the papers were being made out the salesman told of the achievement at the C.W.A.C. depot.

A DEPOSIT

"If they can do that on 90 cents a day, I can do better than I had planned," as he instructed the sales man to take the $100 as a deposit on a $1,000 bond purchase.

Sales in Vermilion Saturday amounted to $50,000 to give the district the honor of being the first district in the $100,000 quota group to reach its objective.

Two interesting purchases were made at the Edmonton headquarters Monday. One, a $200, investment, was made by the Sunday school group of the Ukrainian Orthodox Church of St. John's. The purchase was made by Melvina Gowda, 12-year-old daughter of Dr. F. Gowda, and Victoria Miskew, 14-year-old daughter of Peter Miskew, Edmonton lawyer. At the same time the ladies auxiliary of the church purchased a $100 bond. The purchases were made from funds accumulated through social activities in connection with the church.

YOUR NEWSPAPER GOES TO War!

TOTAL war has added immeasurably to the responsibility of Canadian newspapers.

It is a two-fold responsibility — first, to the public . . . to keep it informed during these critical days—second, to advertisers, to give them the best means of telling their story and presenting their merchandise when and where it will do the most good.

Canada's newspapers have been quick to meet their war-time responsibilities regardless of cost and effort . . . Today the newspaper is more indispensable than ever before to reader and advertiser alike.

ing had gone on to Naples after the interview.

Goering was last reported in Vienna directing the movement of war plants out of the range of Allied bombers, Moscow recalled. Himmler visited Zagreb last week in a trouble-shooting trip for Hitler.

No matter how trustworthy the "local press circles" quoted by the Moscow radio, it was clear that Italy was building up her defences in the wake of the Allied victory in Tunisia and the imminence of an Allied invasion of the Axis European fortress.

PLANS PREPARED

Virgino Gayda of the Giornale d' Italia was quoted by the Berlin radio last night as saying that the Axis "has prepared plans of defence which will become known when the time comes."

Gayda declared further that the Allied Tunisian triumph actually improved Italy's defensive position because "the Italians can now concentrate all their means of defence within their own country while the enemy has to risk a jump across the sea."

City Flier Has Brilliant Role In Africa Drive

ALGIERS, May 11. — (CP) — Many Canadians serving with R.A.F. squadrons "stooged" overhead as victorious elements of the ground forces entered Tunis and Bizerte, the two main objectives in the North African campaign.

Among the fighter pilots who have played a brilliant part throughout the campaign is Sqdn. Ldr. Jimmy Walker, D.F.C. and Bar, Edmonton.

Other Canadian fighter pilots who have been in action on this front include FO. George Keith, Taber, Alta.; PO. Harry (Junior) Fenwick, D.F.C., of Sioux Lookout, Ont., and Flt. Sgt. Albert (Tommy) Thomas, Winnipeg.

How many enemy aircraft have fallen to Canadians it is impossible to say at present, but Walker and Sqdn. Ldr. George Hill of Pictou, N.S., have shot down 19 between them in this theatre of war.

In ancient Rome, men used blue paint to trace the veins in their arms, believing this made them more attractive.

Decide Supplies To Be Furnished Russian Allies

OTTAWA, May 11. — (CP) — Prime Minister King announced today that a secret protocol setting forth the supplies to be furnished to Russia in the year beginning next July 1 by the United States, the United Kingdom and Canada now is being drafted.

Mr. King said the protocol "must remain secret" to avoid giving information which would be of great value to the enemy.

"It is expected that under it the three countries will undertake to make available for shipment to Russia stated quantities of munitions, war materials and essential supplies, subject to modification after consultation in the event of unforeseen developments in the war situation," said Mr. King.

HAVE BEEN PARTIES

"Hitherto supplies have been furnished to the U.S.S.R. by the United Kingdom and the United States under annual agreements of this type to which the United States, the United Kingdom and the Soviet Union have been parties.

"Supplies which have gone to Russia from Canada, except for wheat and some miscellaneous commodities for which special arrangements were made, have been included in the commitments made by the United Kingdom or in some cases in those made by the United States."

Under the new mutual aid bill now before parliament, Canada's aid to the United Nations will be made directly to the particular nations concerned, allocated according to the strategic need.

Report F.D.R., Churchill May Plan Meeting

African victories had given rise to speculation that Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt might meet again to resurvey the war situation. This speculation, however, lacked official confirmation).

For some time there have been reports that Allied conferences were being arranged or already are under way.

Information here last month indicated that war councils of both Allied and Axis camps were drafting final orders for a showdown fight in the main battle area on the European continent.

TALKS NECESSARY

Observers at that time said they believed that after an appropriate interval for re-organization a general Allied advance would follow the Axis defeat in Tunisia—possibly a dual thrust by Soviet Russia from one side and the British and American forces on the other.

In final preparation for any such joint assault, or a limited form of it, it was suggested that extensive talks had been or would be convened.

Some observers even speculated that the co-ordination which was obtained between the North African campaign and Russia's winter counter-offensive would be extended to the creation of a United Nations high command. This view, however, was not widely advanced.

The earliest cemetery here remembered by the oldest settlers was on what is now Capitol Hill. This was abandoned in the 90's and Edmonton cemetery on 116 street was opened. Subsequently Mount Pleasant and Beechmount were opened.

As the coffins discovered Monday were near the site of the Old Hudson's Bay Company fort, it is thought that the bodies were buried there when early fur-traders used that location as a cemetery and that record of its existence had long since disappeared.

broke quickly under heavy attack ending organized resistance in that area.

There also was some resistance in the area south of Lake Achkel, in the northern sector where the Germans formally surrendered to the American 2nd Corps. Small, Nazi guerilla bands were hiding in caves on Djebel Achkel and dashing out at night and sometimes in daylight to raid nearby villages.

HUGE PRISONER TOLL

The total number of prisoners taken in the Tunisian campaign was put at more than 87,000, according to official dispatches, but there appeared to be no doubt that it would increase 100,000 or more soon. Five thousand prisoners were taken by the Imperials in the wedge they drove across the base of Cap Bon peninsula, including part of the Hermann Goering division.

There was still no indication of a major attempt by the Germans to stage a Tunisian "Dunkirk" escape by sea, probably because no boats were available except a few small ones which were sunk by Allied planes.

British and American bombers continued to throw their greatest weight against the chain of island stepping stones along the invasion route to Italy. Enemy air fields and harbors at Pantelleria naval base island and Sicily were bombed. It was the fifth raid in three days on Pantelleria when another group of more than 100 bombers attacked the island Monday afternoon following a similar morning raid.

BLAST AIRFIELDS

Flying Fortresses bombed the airfields at Milo and Borizzo in Sicily, while other airplanes hammered the enemy positions on Cap Bon and in the Zaghouan sector. Many big fires were seen on Cap Bon as a result of the bombings.

Again the Allied airplanes met virtually no opposition in the air, although they concentrated on enemy airdromes to which troops might try to escape by air from Tunisia.

The spokesman pointed out that while "The Germans are showing no inclination to throw up their hands" on the south front, the battle of North Africa is "practically completed."

Many prisoners were coming in, sometimes entire companies with full equipment, from the Cap Bon peninsula and many of them seemed happy to surrender. Near Moghrane the enemy made a small counter-attack but it was quickly repulsed.

20 Killed When Mine Explodes

DUBLIN, May 11.—(CP)—Twenty men are known to have been killed by the explosion of a mine which floated in from the Atlantic at Ballymastus, small Eire seaside village in County Donegal.

Five were injured and two are missing.

Some men were blown into the sea and others were so badly shattered that identification was difficult.

A large crowd had gathered near the mine and several men were trying to loosen nuts of the explosive with monkey wrenches. Others were prodding it with sticks. The explosion shattered windows in village houses and was heard for 50 miles.

Getting Ready for Invasion?

Report American Troops Stationed On Cyprus Island With Britishers

By JOHN A. PARRIS

Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

LONDON, May 11.—Reports that American troops have been stationed on Cyprus Island at the eastern end of the Mediterranean circulated through invasion-conscious Europe today as speculation increased that the Allies were getting ready to move against Axis-held islands guarding the southern approach to the continent.

Swedish press reports from Sofia, via Berlin, said that the Stars and Stripes were flying beside the British Union Jack from Cyprus' public buildings and that American military, political and economic experts were aiding in administration of the island.

An American general who commands a division and his staff were said to have arrived at Nicosia, the island's capital. These reports said that the Americans began arriving on Cyprus two months ago presumably as part of the invasion plan.

Word reaching Madrid from Italy and France told of the intensified preparations by the Axis to fortify Sicily, Sardinia, Cornica and southern Italy against invasion.

WORK BEING RUSHED

Thousands of laborers were pouring cement for anti-tank ditches, machine gun emplacements and air raid shelters in Italy, it was said. The work, started in December, was being rushed to completion because of the Axis collapse in Tunisia.

It was suggested that recent heavy Allied bombings of the whole Mediterranean area were designed partly to weaken these defences.

Greek sources here said that the capture of Crete would be equally important as the capture of Sicily in any Allied invasion from Africa. The Nazis were believed to have four division or about 48,000 men on the heavily-fortified island.

The Greeks suggested that it might be easier first to occupy the Dodecanese Islands off the Turkish coast. These islands believed to be held by 50,000 Italians, are not believed to be as well fortified as Crete.

CONDITIONS BAD

Adolf Hitler gave an idea of conditions among the Nazi fighting men in his appeal for Red Cross funds yesterday. He asserted that "the homeland cannot assess how great has been the physical moral demands" upon the troops. He indicated that conditions had been especially bad on the Russian front.

"All the sacrifices at home pale in comparison with the privations and sufferings that our soldiers had to undergo for a second time in the east," Hitler said.

German meat rations were reported to have been cut from 12.3 ounces to 8.8 ounces a week for each person.

It was rumored in Swedes that 15 Germans had been arrested in Norway on suspicion of wrecking four ships in Oslo harbor.

Radio Paris reported that 12,000 persons had been evacuated from Le Havre, French channel port. A German news agency report said that a "prohibited zone" had been established along the border of France and Switzerland.

New Commander

Lt-Gen. Jacob L. Devers, above, chief of the U.S. armored force, has been designated the new commander of all U.S. forces in the European theatre of operations, according to an announcement by Secretary of War Stimson. General Devers succeeds Lt-Gen. Frank M. Andrews, who was killed in a plane crash in Iceland.

province to subscribe to securities of the Dominion and, thus Ontario's $5,000,000 is a clear gain when compared with previous loans.

Loan headquarters officials said indications pointed to an increasing volume of payroll subscriptions and no special loss of ground in general canvass. But they added that "every effort on the part of victory loan workers and of the public to maintain or improve present averages" is still required, "to the very end of the campaign."

Employees of Canadian National Railways and subsidiaries — Trans-Canada Air Lines and National Railways Munitions — have subscribed more than in the preceding loan. The total for the first two weeks of the drive was $4,934,950 against a total for the entire preceding loan of $4,829,500. These figures were subscribed by 54,496 employees, 304 fewer than the total for bond purchasers in all the last campaign.

CORPORATE PURCHASES

Corporate subscriptions announced today include Canadian Industries Ltd., $2,500,000; Singer Manufacturing Co., $1,500,000; Algoma Steep Corp., Sault Ste. Marie, $2,000,000; Swift Canadian Co. Ltd., Toronto, $3,000,000.

Winnipeg reported that J. I. Case Co. had subscribed for $200,000.

The R.C.A.F. reported that 58,034 officers and men have subscribed $6,359,150, compared with 16,000 subscriptions for a total of $4,300,000 in the Third Victory Loan.

Western air command has passed three objectives, ranging from the original $285,000 to $300,000. Subscriptions now stand at $501,700.

The navy's provisional total of approximately $2,250,000 includes $1,190,000 from Atlantic command personnel, who have raised 119 per cent of their quota.

Man Is Discovered Injured Condition

Summoned to Victory Loan headquarters late Saturday night, city police found Nils E. Jonsson, 12426 84 street, with his face covered with blood, and though he could speak, refused to say anything. He was taken to the Royal Alexandra hospital where he was found to be suffering from a cut on the head and bruises on the right side of the face. An X-ray was taken of the head and medical attention given to the man.

Jonsson gave his name at the hospital, and said he was 39 years old and a plasterer.

Other possible injuries had not been ascertained.

Sharp Debate

Two Amendments Rejected As Second Reading Given Billion Dollar Aid Bill

OTTAWA, May 11—(CP)—After sharp debate in which Mrs. Dorise W. Nielsen (Unity, North Battleford), said Hon. P. J. A. Cardin (Lib., Richelieu-Vercheres) last week had made "a subversive speech of the first order," the $1,000,000,000 mutual aid bill received second reading in the House of Commons last night.

The house rejected two amendments to the motion to give second reading. One, moved by J. S. Roy (Ind., Gaspe), and asking that the bill be not given second reading, was rejected by a vote of 128 to 10.

The second, moved by Liguori Lacombe (Con., Laval-Two Mountains), and urging the bill be given a six months' hoist, was defeated by 127 votes to 10.

SUPPORT AMENDMENT

In each case, 10 French-Canadian members supported the amendment, while the Progressive Conservative, C.C.F. and New Democracy parties voted solidly with the Liberal majority.

Mrs. Nielsen, speaking in support of the bill, said that Mr. Cardin's speech last week must have given comfort to the enemy. He had complained of the load of taxes borne in Canada.

She said she admired French-Canadians' expression of their love of country, but it should be remembered they were not the native people of Canada. The American Indians, the native people, had suffered from the French and English invasions, and there should be a sense of guilt when the Indian place in the national life was considered.

If there were a third invasion of Canada at the present time, Canadians would be lucky if they were to survive as long as the Indians.

Mrs. Nielsen said Mr. Cardin was not anxious to see the spearhead in Europe made by Canadians, and had said if it were delayed it would be better.

"CHEERS FOR GOEBBELS"

"Three cheers for Goebbels and company!" she continued. "The very thing they themselves will advocate and try to gain if at all possible.

"My friend, I speak to you very honestly, I said it would be too good to be true that we in Canada do not have Quislings. Seldom have I heard anyone voice anything more in favor of the Axis than the opinions that have been declared by the honorable member for Richelieu-Vercheres in that infamous speech."

Frederick Dorion (Ind., Charlevoix-Saguenay), supporting the Roy amendment, said everyone in the Dominion wished to win the war but Canadians were the only ones, as in the last war, who would draw no benefit from it. Canada must get rid of the spirit of colonialism.

"COLONIAL TRIBUTE"

Finance Minister Ilsley, sponsor of the bill, asked if it were "colonial tribute" to send help to Australia, New Zealand, Russia, China and other countries allied with Canada in the war.

Mutual aid was not tribute nor charity but sound common sense, the doing of a duty.

Canada had made its decisions unprompted by the United Kingdom, the United States or any other nation.

"The phrase (of colonial tribute) is fantastic and ridiculous and is entirely unwarranted," said Mr. Ilsley.

He was "astonished" it had been uttered by his former colleague in the cabinet, Mr. Cardin. The real test of a nation's sacrifice was not taxation, but what the people had left after taxation and the lending of money to the government. When it was claimed Canadians were less left than the British people, then the statement could not be proved for one minute in the light of true conditions.

JEOPARDIZE FREEDOM

Mrs. Nielsen said any effort to arouse differences between Canada and the other United Nations jeopardized the cause for freedom. Anything which impeded the Allies' new offensive aided Hitler. The German leader had sought to drive a wedge between Poland and Russia and isolate Russia. The Russians had the courage to shoot the spies sent among them and Hitler's plans had been thwarted.

At the councils after the war, Canada as a free nation could vote on her status.

Mrs. Nielsen said she was surprised no one had answered Mr. Cardin's speech.

The men overseas were better representatives of Canada than Mr. Cardin, and it was up to all with a share in Canada to see there was fairness for all in Canada. The men overseas would give their lives to save the aged people of Canada, to save their wives and children from being raped, buried alive, killed. They would refute the words of Mr. Cardin.

Mr. Ilsley said the Roy amendment did not suggest any alternative to the course proposed in the bill. It simply said parliament had no mandate to do it.

HAVE CLEAREST MANDATE

"This parliament has the clearest possible mandate to do everything possible to bring this war to a successful conclusion at the earliest possible moment," said Mr. Ilsley.

If the bill were not adopted the war effort would be curtailed and its whole direction altered.

If Canada's mutal aid was colonial tribute then the United States, which was doing the same, was making colonial tribute. The statement was obviously absurd.

The real test was what the people had left to enjoy after paying their taxes and contributing to the war effort. It could be clearly demonstrated that the British people had much less than the Canadian, in meat, in clothing, in gasoline, in almost everything.

It had been said India and South Africa had gone further than Canada in stripping the United Kingdom of securities. But these countries had not repatriated privately-held securities. Government debts had been substantially repatriated. Canada had gone at least as far. Canadian government securities had been repatriated and there had been a suggestion Canada had gone too far.

CASH "UNTHINKABLE"

Mr. Ilsley said that having in mind relations with the United States, and the fact the United States had long since gone off the cash on the barrel basis, it would be unthinkable Canada would revert to that method in carrying on the war—demanding cash.

Canada would have unemployment unless the United Nations were enabled to buy Canadian production.

But it was a matter of duty that Canada should aid the common effort without looking for pay for what was done.

Mr. Ilsley said he had been in consultation with censorship and intelligence authorities on the information he might give on the shipments to the United Kingdom under the $1,000,000,000 gift last year. He hoped to make a statement to the house on the shipments Tuesday afternoon.

Angus MacInnis (C.C.F., Vancouver East) said the statement should be in some detail as it appeared as if the enemy knew more about such shipments than did the house members.

Liguori Lacombe said Canada could not afford to continue making such gifts to countries of much greater wealth without bringing on disastrous inflation.

WANTS GOLD BACK

"Instead of giving away this $1,000,000,000 I would ask the government to bring back to Canada all the gold which was produced by our mines only during the past 35 years."

Only those who paid their debts could afford gifts. Canada had not paid the capital on the debt of the First Great War, had only impoverished itself by paying hundreds of millions in interest.

Speaking before the dinner recess Mr. Roy said the explanation of Canadian policy and attitude in the last few years was a "certain sentimental fear rather than a truly Canadian patriotism." The war was called Canada's war although there were no Canadian citizens, and Canadians were called British subjects.

He could not understand why there still were appeals to the Privy Council in England, and "the worst of it is that we have no flag, yet we are to walk among the nations after the war with our head high."

OPPOSED TO WAR

Mr. MacInnis, who also spoke before the dinner recess, said he regretted passage of the bill would not be unanimous in the house. He could only conclude that when a member opposed the bill he opposed the war in its entirety.

Canada was not in the war for material advantage but for freedom, and the Dominion must be careful to see that when the military victory was won that freedom was maintained.

He had been amazed to hear J. F. Pouliot (Lib., Kimouski), suggest in a recent speech that for her contribution to the present war Canada should receive Newfoundland and West Indies territories.

The workers were not asking for such rewards from the war, but were asking for access to the means of life and the abundance they believe can be achieved.

MILLION ORPHANS

SYDNEY, N.S.W.—(CP)—There are more than 1,000,000 children in Europe with no known parents, it was stated at a British Orphans' Adoption Society Council meeting which passed a resolution favoring transfer of orphans from Britain and Europe to Australia for adoption.

Missing

Sgt. Air Gunner J. A. C. Taylor, R.C.A.F., who has been reported missing after air operations overseas.

Local Airman Missing After Air Operations

Born in this city, the son of an Edmonton-born father and grandson of a pioneer resident and business man, Sgt. Air Gunner J. A. C. Taylor, R.C.A.F., has been reported missing after air operations overseas, according to word received by his wife who lives at 10942 81 avenue.

Sgt. Air Gunner Taylor is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Taylor of 92 St. George's Crescent. Father of the young airman is manager of Taylor and Pearson Ltd.

Born here, Sgt. Air Gunner Taylor was 22 years old. He attended Westward Ho school here and later Trinity College School at Port Hope, Ont. Later he was associated with his father in the business of Taylor and Pearson Ltd.

He enlisted in the R.C.A.F. in the spring of 1941, and received training at No. 3 "M" Depot here, then at Claresholm and Saskatoon and later was graduated as a sergeant air gunner at Fingal, Ont. He went overseas in August, 1942.

Prior to going overseas he was married to Miss Margaret Wallis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ellison Wallis of 10942 81 avenue. They have one son, James.

PIONEER HERE

Sgt. Air Gunner Taylor's grandfather, the late Alex Taylor, was one of the this city's pioneer residents and business men and is commemorated in civic life as a result of the naming of the Alex Taylor school in his honor.

Mr. Taylor was the first telegraph operator in this part of the country and when the large type for the banner headline of the first issue of The Edmonton Bulletin was lost in the Saskatchewan River when the Red River cart on which it was being transported, overturned, Mr. Taylor, who was an expert in woodwork, carved another heading in wood.

Later Mr. Taylor was instrumental in establishing the first telephone and power companies here—the forerunners of the present municipal plants.

J. M. Taylor, father of the young airmen, served overseas in the Great War of 1914-1918. He enlisted here as a private in the 138th Battalion and served in the ranks for two years. Later he transferred to the 50th Squadron, R.A.F.

An uncle, Capt. Walker Taylor, served in France with the 49th Battalion and for a time served on the staff of Maj.-Gen. W. A. Griesbach, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., V.D.

Radio Regulations In States Upheld By Supreme Court

By EDWARD H. HIGGS

WASHINGTON, May 11—(AP)—Regulations prohibiting exclusive broadcast contracts between a network and a radio station and otherwise restricting their relationships were upheld yesterday by the United States Supreme court as a valid exercise of the federal communications commission's licensing power in the "public interest, convenience or necessity."

The 5-2 opinion, delivered by Justice Frankfurter, declared that the regulations, challenged by the National Broadcasting company and the Columbia Broadcasting system, were properly issued under the Communications act of 1934.

Post-War Aerial Development on Vast Scale Seen

WINNIPEG, May 11—(CP)—John Bracken, Progressive Conservative leader, said in an interview here yesterday that every week makes it more clear that post-war air transportation will develop on a huge scale.

Aviation and civic authorities see Winnipeg as a key point in post-war terial travel, and commenting on efforts being made to assure this, Mr. Bracken said:

"Keep on trying. There is no reason why Winnipeg shouldn't get ready."

The Winnipeg-St. James airport commission has a post-war program under consideration calling for enlargement of Stevenson Field, the city's chief airport.

Daily War Map—Exclusively in The Edmonton Bulletin

Four possible offensive moves by Germany are illustrated by this map. Least daring would be a great, sharp drive to secure Russian oil for a future defensive war. More aggressive would be a thrust—or combination of attacks—against England, Gibraltar or Turkey and the Eastern Mediterranean.

Partial Potato Freeze Ordered, Plan Controls

OTTAWA, May 11.—(CP)—To meet existing potato shortages, the Prices Board last night announced a temporary freeze of parts of the potato stocks in the hands of large wholesalers and the channeling of all shipments from the Maritimes through a central agency in Montreal to centres of greatest shortages.

Officials said further controls on retail sales were being planned and that sales of certified seed potatoes would be regulated to ensure their use as seed and not for table use.

Giraud Offers De Gaulle Share In Leadership

ALGIERS, May 11.—(AP)—Gen. Henri Giraud has offered Gen. Charles de Gaulle a "swap arrangement" under which the two leaders would alternate as chief of the French forces fighting with the United Nations, it was disclosed last night.

Giraud has insisted, however, that this should be a temporary setup with all concerned ready to turn over their power to a provisional government to be chosen by the French people as soon as France is liberated.

The offer was embodied in an appendix to Giraud's reply to de Gaulle's proposals made available to the Associated Press.

Under the scheme, two big jobs were suggested for the temporary setup—presidency of a French council and president of a committee charged with executing the council's orders. Giraud suggested that deGaulle and himself take turns at both jobs, switching from time to time.

"We will fulfill in turn the role of the presidency of the meeting of the committee and of the council," Giraud said. "This does not mean a duomvirate. Quite the contrary.

"Our responsibilities would be based on the collective responsibilities of the council and the committee. We would sign all ordinances jointly.

"We would participate on the same grade as the other members in all deliberations and decisions which the committee or the council would be called upon to take."

DUE TO CIRCUMSTANCES

To De Gaulle's objection that Giraud is holding both the military and civil chieftancy contrary to the French constitution, the French high commissioner for North Africa replied that the circumstances of the moment demanded that he do so. Giraud argued that this makes no difference since he proposes to turn over all his powers to a provisional French government when it is formed after the Axis is driven from France.

Giraud conceded that the present procedure would be illegal in normal times, but maintained that these are not normal times.

Giraud said that "under the present exceptional circumstances, in my opinion, extraordinary measures embodying the participation of the commander in chief in the council meetings are necessary."

He added that when the Allied armies enter France the French army will have the responsibility of maintaining order and will take over the authority of the French prefects of police.

Present Position Uncertain

Eighth Army May Solve Riddle Of Next United Nations' Blow

By SCOTT YOUNG

LONDON, May 11.—(CP)—The present disposition of Gen. Sir Bernard Montgomery's 8th Army, used as a decoy in Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Anderson's master strategy for the capture of Tunis, may answer the riddle of where the United Nations will strike next.

Its position was last reported in the Ainhalloof area north of Enfidaville, facing powerful German and Italian units near the base of the Cap Bon "thumb" thrusting into the battle-tossed Mediterranean.

It is known that some of the best units of the 8th Army—notably the 7th Armored Division and the 4th Indian Division—were pulled out of the Ainhalloof area and sent to join the 1st Army for the Tunis attack.

MAIN AXIS WORRY

The main Axis worry is this: Is the remainder of the 8th still in the Ainhalloof sector, or have other units been withdrawn to the rear for regrouping and preparation for another stroke elsewhere—either in the final phase of the Cap Bon campaign or the initial phase of the new battle of Europe?

Briefly, here is how an intriguing doubleplay between Gen. Montgomery and Gen. Anderson fooled the Axis.

One night just before dark the 8th was all set for an attempt to smash through the strong forces facing it and take Tunis for Gen. Montgomery.

A few hours before zero time, Gen. Montgomery called his corps and divisional commanders together, told them the attack had been called off, and detailed a few units which were to join the 1st Army 25 miles away.

These units were pulled out of the line and within an hour of joining the 1st Army just about dawn, pushed in the front of the advancing forces and stormed towards Tunis.

CAUGHT "OFF BASE"

The Axis, left with most of his armor and the major part of his guns and troops facing the 8th Army, was caught off base.

There wasn't even time to pull up the dormant force to meet the new threat because Tunis and Bizerte fell too quickly. So this strong and well-equipped Axis force remains where it was, in imminent danger of being trapped and cut off, losing slightly against line-straightening attacks from what is left of the 8th Army and wondering where the rest of it is.

The Axis may also be wondering whers Gen. Montgomery himself is. His Easter visit to Cairo may have been just a coincidence of course but history is short of instances of generals leaving their troops in the heat of battle to make social calls well over 1,000 miles away.

Following that has come an important conference of Middle East military and civilian chiefs now in progress in Cairo. Gen. Montgomery is not among those reported present.

SUFFRAGETTE DIES

Nina Boyle, one of the leaders of the suffragette movement in Britain 25 years ago, died in a London nursing home at 77. She went to jail three times during the campaign, and on one occasion in prison had to be forcibly fed.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE
QUICKLY AND EASILY

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from Merrick Drug Stores or any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally in a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender parts. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.

A Chance for All

For the first ten days of the campaign sales of Victory bonds averaged better than $63,000,000 per day. If this pace is held, the minimum objective of $1,100,000,000 will be gained in the three-week period. A less satisfactory feature was the number of buyers.

During the ten days sales totalled 782,246. This was far in advance of the 563,696 sales made in the corresponding days of the Third Loan campaign last fall. But it fell far short of promising that the 3,000,000 buyers' mark will be reached. And among these early buyers were several corporations, some provincial governments, municipal councils and school boards.

The meaning is plain. Not enough people of moderate means are taking advantage of the opportunity to lay away a few bonds against future needs. Twice as many should have done so in the ten-day period, for to no other class of the population is it so important to "nail down" some wartime savings by putting them into these bonds.

A bond can be bought for $50. It can be bought on time and paid for over a term of months. This is a device that does not often come for the man of small earnings and with little accumulated money to lay the foundation for a future free from financial worry. Only in wartime or other unusual conditions does such an opportunity present itself. No one can buy a bond—or a pocketful of them—should miss the chance.

A Diversion Drive

If General Wavell invaded Burma with a view to capturing Akyab he has failed, for his troops have had to plod back through the swamps to within 40 miles or so of the Indian border. But that such was his purpose was only assumed, from the direction of the drive and the energy with which it was pushed in the early stages. Neither Wavell nor anyone else who could speak with authority ever announced that Akyab was the objective, or that the invasion was the opening of operations designed to clear the Japanese out of Burma.

What has been accomplished is perhaps what the move was intended to accomplish. The Japanese have been too busy fighting the invaders to do anything more than stage an occasional air raid on cities in eastern India. They were supposed to be ready months ago to attempt an all-out invasion. If so, the event did not come off, probably because Wavell struck first.

Meanwhile, the recruiting of Indian troops has gone ahead at the rate of 100,000 per month, training has been carried on energetically, and reserves of equipment and munitions built up. India is now in far better position to deal with an invading force than it was six months ago, well able to take care of any force the Japanese can muster for an attack. This may explain why Wavell's Indian army swarmed down through the jungles and threatened Akyab.

Malta Rings the Bells

While the church bells in Malta proclaimed the joy of the populace over the Allied victory in Tunisia, 400 bombers from African territory which Mussolini threw away sailed over to blast Palermo in the heaviest raid yet staged in that theatre, while 100 more pounded the little Italian island of Pantelleria.

Sicily and Pantelleria are bases from which any attempted evacuation of Axis forces from Tunisia must be carried out. They are the nearest pieces of Axis territory, in which fugitives from the defeated armies might find refuge if they can escape in small boats under cover of night. They are stepping stones at the crossing of the Mediterranean.

Any or all these reasons may account for the smashing air attacks on the islands while the remnants of the Axis forces were still fighting in scattered bands and trying to organize some sort of defence in the Cape Bon peninsula. The raids may have been intended to block evacuation plans, or to soften the island "bridge" for an invasion force bound for Italy, or both.

The Maltese are likely to have many more occasions to ring their bells in satisfaction than these islands have taken Malta's place as the bomb-target of the Mediterranean. Whatever may be the Allied invasion plans, these bases of hostile sea and air power must be destroyed. Only by destroying them can the Allies obtain full control of the short Mediterranean route to the Near East and the Far East. That alone would doom the islands to devastating attacks—probably by sea as well as by air.

Agreed to Disagree

Moscow has denied any intention to set up a rival Polish Government-in-exile. But it reports that a Polish division is to be formed to fight with the Red army against the Nazis. This action, it is stated, is being taken by a union of Polish patriots whose leaders are opposed to the refugee Polish Government in London.

In their recent statements, neither Mr. Churchill nor Mr. Stalin committed himself to the restoration of Poland territorially as it existed before the war.

The very plain fact is that the rift between the Russians and the Poles did not start with the alleged discovery by the Nazis of the graves of Polish officers whom they claimed had been killed by the Russians. It started when the Red army invaded Poland concurrently with the Nazis. The root cause of the dispute is suspicion on the part of the Polish leaders at London that Moscow does not intend to give back the territory it then seized.

Nothing good could come of arguing this boundary question at present. Unless Hitler is defeated it will make no difference what the Poles or the Russians want; they will both have to take what the pleases to give them—and that won't be much.

But it is better that the situation should be clearly understood, for the problem is one that will have to be solved when the fighting-up time comes. And the more clearly it is recognized now, the more of the credit due them will be given to the Russian and Polish leaders, and to Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Churchill, for handling so highly explosive an issue in a way to prevent the open breach which the enemy so much hoped for.

V

General Von Arnim is said to have followed Rommel's example and fled to Europe, leaving command of the Axis forces in Tunisia to the Italian General Messe. The report is probably correct. It accords with the Axis rule of precedence all through the campaign. Where there was glory to be gained, a Nazi has been on the spot to receive the plaudits. Where death or capture was certain, the Italians have been given the place of honor. Messe was imported into Tunisia and dubbed commander-in-chief when—and not until—it became apparent that disaster was just around the corner. He must have known the plot was to unload upon him the odium for a defeat in the making of which he had no hand. If Giovanni has the spunk of a rabbit he will put the Afrika Korps in the front line until there isn't any of it left, and then surrender his Italians in mass.

Fifteen thousand dollars added would make a net debt of $23,482.49, or below a gross debt of $35,263. Our total assessment as set forth by the bylaw is $684,364, which fixes the limit of our credit at $68,436, over half of which—and the first half in such cases is always the best half—will be already absorbed if the bylaw carries.

Russian-Polish Dispute a Question of Territory

Possibility of a Separate Russian Peace Is Now Remote

By DOROTHY THOMPSON

The breaking of relations, some days ago, between Stalin and General Sikorski's Polish government in exile, has opened the whole question of Russia and the western nations. The return of Mr Litvinoff to Moscow, and the second visit of former ambassador Davies foreshadow new negotiations. Fortunately, there are symptoms of good will from both sides.

The attitude of the British and American governments has been to try to reconcile both parties, on no account to drive the wedge deeper.

Dorothy Thompson

From the Russian side, there is lately a distinct change of tone. Stalin, in his order of the day of April 30, accused, for the first time, the Casablanca formula of "unconditional surrender."

He also, for the first time, has changed his attitude of denigrating the North African campaign and the bombing raids over Europe and Germany which, of late, have been costing us dearly. He now appreciates both as substantial contributions to victory, and affirms unequivocally that Russia and the western powers are fighting a united war of coalition.

So the atmosphere is not as bad as might have been feared a fortnight ago.

Basic Issues

But this does not settle the basic issues involved in the war aims of the several powers. There have been apprehensions that Russia might possibly get out of the war and conclude a separate peace with Hitler. Stalin's latest statements rule this out—and so does Hitler's launching of the story about the massacre of Polish officers. For if Hitler were thinking of a separate peace with Russia, he would not have launched his story, at this moment.

He obviously launched it in order to deepen the breach between Poles and Russians, whose relations have been unhappy for a year and a half, and probably with it, he hoped to make overtures to certain sections of the Polish people.

Hitler is forming new armies, out of such eastern European peoples as he can command, and recently it became known that a captured Red army general is recruiting an army of Ukrainians, from the territory occupied by the Germans.

The German high command certainly recalls that during the last war, a Polish Legion was formed on German soil out of refugees, and men from the territories occupied then as now by the Germans. They were led by Colonel Pilsudski — afterward Marshal—and fought the Russians. Late in 1917 Pilsudski broke with the Germans when they tried to set up a Hohenzollern prince as king of Poland, and he was arrested and interned in the fortress of Magdeburg.

The policy of Pilsudski, at head of the Polish state, was consistently to try to avoid either a clash of nations between Germany and Russia, both of whom, from a Polish viewpoint, and from Polish history, were potential enemies.

Collaborated

Since Russia and Germany have both, in the past, and during this very war, collaborated to destroy Poland, neither country is beloved by the Poles, and there is always the possibility that one branch of Polish opinion and leadership might be pro-Nazi against the other. Hitler is obviously trying to do this now—to woo those Poles who might so greatly fear Russia as to forget what the Nazis have done. So far it is the glory of Poland that she has never had a quisling.

In this situation it is unfortunate that the question of frontiers was ever unrolled at all. Nothing is more dangerous than to start dividing the spoils of war before the war is won. Both Russia and Poland have signed the Atlantic Charter, which contains three pledges: First, no aggrandizement, territorial or otherwise; second, no territorial changes that do not accord with the freely expressed wishes of the people concerned; third, the right of all peoples to choose the form of government under which they will live.

This bars out enlargement of the territory of any ally at the expense of another, and even enlargement of territories at the expense of the enemy, unless the peoples themselves desire it.

It is possible that the Russians date their acceptance of these principles from the time they entered the war, and thus find it compatible with the Atlantic Charter to claim the Baltic States and Eastern Poland. But I think this is stretching the Atlantic Charter very dangerously. I believe that what concerns Russia is frontier security, and that can depends upon the form of peace organization that we are able to create after the war. As a result, we have a peace conference for the Poles and even the Polish governmen in exile, have advanced claims as a corner Poland which are certainly incompatible with the Charter.

In a war of coalition, where there are divergent interests amongst allies, the only safety lies in sticking to clear principles, and not departing from them by an inch. For every departure, by one nation or another, opens a breach through which enemy moves with the greatest expedition.

Making Household Linens Last

Prolong the Life of Sheets By Rotating Their Use

By MARY ALICE QUAYNE

The war-bride of today may not be giving too much thought to the usually alluring subject of her household linens. But the stay-at-home wife, the average home maker, is eyeing her diminishing linen supply with a bleak eye right now. She has heard, no doubt, that the great mills are going full blast for the war effort and she is wondering what that will mean in terms of her own household linen needs.

Where once she blithely waited for the bride to ask this assurance that she could stock up to her heart's content and her purse's limits, these days she may find that stocks are depleted, scarce, or in extreme cases, non-existent.

Therefore she will be wise to give serious thought to sheet conservation and towel salvage, learning to make what she has to do and even more serious thought to wise buying of replacements. That definitely does not mean hoarding, even if there were supplies available for that unpatriotic gesture.

There is a vast difference, of course, between today's requirements for linens and those of our great-grandmothers' day when 12 dozen of everything was a rule and the successful housewife was judged by the ample stock of linens she kept in lavender-scented closets.

Requirements

With weekly laundering, we can cut our linen needs down to a more sensible amount. It is generally agreed that each bed should have a minimum of four sheets with two cases per pillow, but experts say that for the ideal never-wear-out bedding supply each bed should have eight sheets and each pillow four cases. Towel supplies depend more on individual needs, but for anyone a bountiful supply is good economy.

To replenish your bedding supply you should have an accurate picture of your needs—and your needs—judged by your present supply, its state of wear and you, future needs, for limits, these days. Buy your new sheets to fit your beds because sheets too large or too small are wasteful and inefficient.

Tips on Buying

Examine the sizing, that is the measure-yards added to the warp yarns to protect them as they go through the loom. Too much sizing is highly used to disguise loosely woven fabric. This is easily detectable by rubbing the sheet between your fingers. If fine white powder rubs off on your hands—beware!

All these tips on buying aren't much help if there are no sheets in the stores due to war curtailment. Then we must turn to the old-fashioned saving methods we are re-learning these days. First you should know what makes sheets and pillow cases wear out and then you'll probably be surprised to learn that there are quite a number of things you can do to save wear and tear.

Wise Usage

Rotating your supply of sheets is a good idea but don't trust to your memory. Make it a rule to use off the bottom of the pile.

Remember that the upper half of the sheet gets the most wear, caused from rubbing shoulders and elbows. So switch your sheets, using bottom hem at top, every other week.

As soon as the tiniest worn place shows, take the sheet from circulation and before laundering do your darning needle and thread.

Don't yank sheets off a bed; loosen all round the edges before you pull. And watch out about your night beauty habits—face creams and sharp hair curlers don't help pillow cases give long wear.

In laundering use mild soaps and rinse several times—don't soak things over-night. If you have the worry habit of bundling your other household laundry into a sheet or pillow case, now's a good time to break your ways. Provide yourself with a large laundry bag and save your bed linen.

Towel Truths

Many of the same rules apply to the selection and care of towels. Bath towels with loosely woven body or with loose uneven loops won't give you the service that a firm weave and even surface will give. With linen huck towels either unavailable entirely or in the luxury category, most of us are counting on either firmly woven cotton huck or on small size terry towels for hand towels.

Though white towels are probably the most fastidious thing to have, colored towels are more practical for everyday use.

Buy big bath towels and little guest towels, with medium sizes for everyday family use hand towels.

Don't pack damp towels into the hamper. Don't let towels get dirty to the point they require hard scrubbing to get them clean again, but don't put them into the laundry every time they have a wrinkle or you'll find them being worn out by too much washing.

Use towels from the bottom of your stack in the linen closet so that the top one on the pile don't get all the wear.

Sweden Content To Be Small

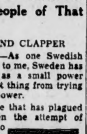
No Territorial Ambitions Plague People of That Country

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER

STOCKHOLM—As one Swedish official here said to me, Sweden has learned in the last war a small power that is a different thing from trying to live as a big power.

The old trouble that has plagued Europe has been the attempt of small countries to become bigger, to scheme and plot and go to war for more territory. They have not learned the lesson Sweden has learned. It was learned here in a very hard way years ago, when Sweden dreamed of being the giant power of the north.



Raymond Clapper

From Viking times the Swedes looked to the east, organized expeditions and sought trade in what is now Russia, and there established a government. In fact, Swedes say the name Russia is of Swedish origin. Sweden was a warlike nation for centuries, fighting almost constantly with Russia, Poland and Denmark to dominate the Baltic and the north. King Gustavus Adolphus, Sweden's greatest hero, was killed in battle in Germany. King Charles XII conquered Denmark and Poland and invaded Russia.

But over the years Sweden gradually found that wars did not pay, and that another way of existence was possible, which during the last century of peace has enabled Sweden to become a model abode of freedom and economic security. The Swedes have found that a nation can be happy, prosperous and respected without being big or warlike

Instead of conquering territory, the Swedes learned to send ships with fine productive all over the world. They advanced through technical skill instead of force of arms. They won markets by craftmanship and enterprise instead of by guns. So it is that the Swedes can say to me that with 7 million people they have learned to live as a small power.

Finland's woes rise partly, though not entirely, out of a failure to learn that lesson.

Sweden knows now that so long as there is no world security she is in danger. That was the purpose of the May Day remarks of Premier Hansson. As leader of the Social Democratic party and successor to Branting, he was long a Pacifist and opposed military expenditures. But in the last few years he has had to reverse his position and take measures to provide defences for Sweden, which are now considerable.

Premier Hansson warns his people that Sweden is in an exposed and precarious situation simply because of its geographical position, which lies near possible paths of attack and strategical regions. Swedish hopes for the safety of the north were shattered in April, 1940—that is, when the Germans attacked Norway.

Sweden's position now, as authoritatively stated, is that she will try to continue her neutrality and to remain out of the war. But this does not mean Sweden will neglect her rights and obligations just for the sake of peace. Premier Hansson says the Swedish defence force is prepared to intervene when necessary and to use weapons to defend its rights and violations of Swedish neutrality may be respected. That is plainly addressed to Germany. As a result of the recent Nazi firing on a Swedish submarine. It is significant that Hansson has repeatedly said that even if attacked, Sweden will resist with all her force. The people were again notified on Nov. Day that in such case there must fight, and were warned not to believe any quisling who might appear.

What It Is to Live in England

BY I.N.S., IN THE OTTAWA JOURNAL

The Victory Loan appeal, of necessity, is much the same as before. We are shielded by familiarity. Yet somehow we must be persuaded to buy our share. How?

What about taking a look at the people of England? They are living day-to-day while we are considering investment in a loan that pays three per cent.

Remember we used to be fun to read the column of personal advertisements in the London Times? It's not fun now. They tell of sadness and of change.

Every day relatives seek missing soldiers or announce the death of airmen or sailors. The ads are most short and direct. One or two tell more but leave even more untold.

"Will anyone in touch with prisoners of war be kind enough to make inquiries for . . . wounded in head and capture May, 1942. No reason to believe suffering loss of memory, possibly name and rank unidentified? Age 22, tall, medium build, fair hair, blue eyes, has long scar running round right jaw. Any information gratefully received by his mother."

There is that certain grief, and there is the grief that is only hinted at, as in these:

"Polish mother would gratefully accept or inexpensively buy pram, cot, bath layette."

"Gentleman's camel hair and wool coat, from Army and Navy Stores; bought last six weeks worn twice; as new; medium size; first offer of £15."

"For sale, unworn wedding dress; height 5ft., 7in., hips 37; no coupons required."

Then there are the kind that may indicate war casualties or merely drastically altered circumstances as a result of war:

"Guns. A gentleman offers his pair of fine 12-bore guns, 175 guineas."

"Gentleman's platinum wrist watch by Cartier for sale, perfect order, valued £150; nearest offer, seen in London."

"Officer's widow with very comfortable farmhouse in Hampshire with several acres grounds, own produce, would be glad to take in one or two paying guests either adult or children with nurses."

"Lady's brown riding boots, size 5, very good condition, with trees, lace and ivory-handled pullers. £6 6s."

Canadians who prefer the New Yorker may laugh, but the sight of an old gentleman with a dirk at his long caressed copies of Punch is not amusing to those who have seen Punch revered and cherished:

"Punch, for sale, privately, from first number 1841 until 1928. Beautifully bound; 90 books."

The columns are full of people selling their treasures: encyclopaedias, gramophones, homes, clothes, everything.

However, there are signs that there is the grief that is only hinted at, as in these:

"Polish mother would gratefully accept or inexpensively buy pram, cot, bath layette."

"Gentleman's camel hair and wool coat, from Army and Navy Stores; bought last six weeks worn twice; as new; medium size; first offer of £15."

Speaking of the New Yorker, here's an ad from the New Yorker's raised eyebrow department:

"Lady has to be let in West End flat 2 bedrooms, private bath, sitting room; central heating. Suitable for two officers. Service and breakfast only."

The Stork Club in London, how ever, has nothing whatever to do with the Stork Club in New York.

The Stork Club prepares new layettes for service men's babies and finds them prams and cots."

Petain Ordered Surrender

By J. C. FERNAND-LAURENT

The Nazis failed to get the 70 units of the French fleet in Toulon Harbour, one of the richest prizes of the war, because they out-smarted themselves by cutting telephone wires and jamming radio transmission between German-dominated Vichy and French naval officers at Toulon.

When the Nazis broke up the French-German armistice by unilaterally denouncing it on France's last November 11, Hitler assured Marshal Petain that the Nazis would not occupy the port or fortified positions at Toulon, Fernand-Laurent reports.

Petain's statement, designed to permit the Nazi forces to get to Toulon before the fleet escaped, was accepted by Petain. At the same time the German mined the Toulon Harbor entrance, sewing up the fleet, and placed great siege guns about the city.

On the night of November 26, just 15 days after they began marching into Unoccupied France, the Nazis were ready to occupy Toulon and force the fleet to surrender. This plan came within only a few minutes of succeeding.

In the early morning of November 27 Petain received a message from General Field Marshal Karl von Rundstedt, the German commander, ordering the immediate surrender of the French fleet At the same time, Admiral de Laborde, in charge of the Toulon fleet, was given a harsh message saying the fleet must be surrendered on orders of the Government of Vichy.

Admiral de Laborde only had one set of Vichy orders—those coming from the armistice chief commanding him "to resist all aggression from whatever source and to sabotage the fleet rather than surrender it." To the German ultimatum, he replied that he would open fire on any armed forces approaching his ships. He then made plans to sabotage the fleet.

In the meantime, Marshal Petain acceded to the German commander's demands and gave instructions to Admiral de Laborde to surrender the fleet.

These orders were never given to Admiral de Laborde because the German commanders at Toulon cut every telephone wire on the night of the 26th and jammed all radio transmission in order to isolate the naval base from the rest of France—including Vichy.

It was the signal—the order to sabotage all ships, to destroy port installations, to spike the guns of the coastal batteries. Soon the old dock, the water front, the harbor and the roadstead—the German command found—no ships lived, were no more than cemeteries.

According to competent authorities, the French fleet will be as well that not one of the units of the Toulon fleet, including all but the scuttled submarines, can be floated and repaired by the Germans soon enough to see service in this war.

Clement Attlee Reviews Course Of Victory for Allies in Tunisia

LONDON, May 11.—(AP)—The text of Clement Attlee's statement on the Tunisian campaign in the house of commons today:

Since this house last met a great victory has been won in North Africa.

This striking success by the United Nations has, I know, sent a thrill of joy not only through the hearts of our own people but also the hearts of our Allies and well-wishers all over the world. There are many, in many lands.

TRIBUTE TO VICTORS

Our country has been kept well informed of the progress of events that has taken place and I do not intend this morning to give a lengthy account of operations.

That must wait for the close of the campaign and the receipt of a full account from the commanders in the field.

It is, however, I think, appropriate that we should at our first meeting pay tribute to the men who have driven the enemy from Tunis and Bizerte and inflicted such a crushing defeat on the Axis forces.

Gen. Eisenhower, and Gen. Alexander, working in complete harmony with staffs composed of men drawn from both sides of the Atlantic, have given a very practical example of Allied co-operation, and under their command the forces of the United States and the British Commonwealth and Empire and French North Africa have with great courage, determination and skill carried out successfully the very well-laid plans of the commanders.

ALL ALLIES PLAN PART

It never was very easy to execute a plan which depends on the co-ordination of the movements of large bodies of troops and of all arms fighting on a widely extended front of nearly 100 miles, in difficult and broken country where roads are few and communications scanty. It is still harder to do that when fighting men are drawn from several different countries, each with its own methods and tradition of warfare.

But in this battle drama, American and British, French metropolitan and colonial troops, and New Zealanders and Indians have all played their appropriate part and what has been accomplished could not have been without the skilful generalship, inspiring leadership and fine comradeship and fighting spirit in all the ranks.

But this co-operation was attained not only between men of different nationalities. It also was effected most noticeably between military, naval and air forces.

DOMINATION OF AIR

British and American air forces in North Africa secured and maintained throughout these battles complete domination of air. Throughout this phase, sorties by our air forces compared with those of enemy were something like four to one.

Besides the destruction wrought on the enemy concentrations, on his bases, on his lines of communication, the close support given to ground forces has been a factor of utmost importance in achieving success.

I think this mutual understanding between our air and ground forces was brought in this campaign to a pitch of perfection we never hitherto attained. In this necessarily invaluable has been work of the navy.

No less necessary and invaluable has been work of the Navy in keeping open these long lines of supply that lead from Great Britain and the United States to the shores of North Africa. While on the other side, the navy and the air force working together, by the toll they took of ships and planes by which enemy tried to bring his supplies and reinforcements across the Sicilian Channel, cut down drastically the resources which were available to meet our attack.

SERVE CAUSE WELL

Air Marshal Tedder and Admiral Cunningham and officers and men of all ranks and nations under their command have well served the cause of the United Nations.

Before the opening of the present phase of these operations there had been, I think, in some quarters a certain feeling of impatience. There was a tendency to contrast the rapid advance after El Alamein with the seemingly slow progress of the campaign in Tunisia.

This is due really to the lack of understanding of the different conditions involved. It is one thing to fight in the open desert—and that requires special technique no wonderfully exhibited by the 8th Army. It is quite another matter to fight in the hilly broken country of Tunisia where there is an abundance of defensible positions, where roads are few and very bad. Difficulties of supply and length of communications have not, I think, always been realized, perhaps because we look at too small-scale maps. But I think that in our appreciation of this victory we should do well to remember the service of the men who supply those engaged in the fighting line.

DIFFICULT ADVANCE

But naturally the rapid advance of the Americans in the north and the break-through of our army in the centre, culminating in the capture of Bizerte and Tunis, have tended to overshadow the rest of the fighting. These advances were only possible by hard and difficult fighting in which British, French and American forces were engaged against a stubborn enemy occupying positions of very great natural strength.

Hard and bitter fighting at many points on this long front, which the enemy had to hold, pinned his troops down, extended him and prevented him from resisting successfully the hammer blows which fell in this area where Gen. Alexander had effected at the right point his most heavy concentration of forces.

Thus, while fighting on the sector occupied by Gen. Montgomery's 8th Army has not been so spectacular as further north, active contacts have been kept there all the time throughout last week and on Tuesday a local operation was begun. Heavy fighting took place and progress was slow, owing to the enormous extent of the minefields the enemy had laid. On the left flank of the 8th Army, French 19th Corps launched an attack last Tuesday aimed at securing the high ground by Zaghouan.

SLOW AT FIRST

In this difficult country progress at first was slow and by the end of the week Pont Du Fahs and Zaghouan had been occupied and mopping up of the enemy in the region has been continuing ever since.

It was in the central sector that Gen. Alexander achieved his final break-through and his preliminary preparations included strengthening of the 1st Army by switching armored formations from the 8th Army, including the 7th Armored and the 4th Indian divisions.

It was on Wednesday afternoon that Gen. Anderson attacked and captured the much-contested hill, Djebel Bou Aoukaz. With his left flank thus secure, Gen. Anderson ordered forward the main body of infantry which, supported by a terrific concentration of artillery and the whole weight of the air force, moved forward to their objectives between Djebel Bou Aoukaz and the Medjez-El-Bab-Tunis road.

When these key points were captured they opened the door through which immediately our armor passed to crush the enemy's remaining defences.

GATHERED MOMENTUM

That advance gathered increasing momentum. It exceeded all expectations in its pace. It culminated on Friday afternoon by the entry into Tunis, amid cheers of the rejoicing population, of the Derby Yeomanry of the 1st Army and the veteran 11th Hussars of the 8th Army. The two armies joined together in victory and the Tricolor was run up over Tunis by the French.

The 1st army covered 30 miles in 36 hours, leaving the enemy battered and demoralized, with little or no further organized resistance. In the words of Gen. Alexander it was a real thunderbolt.

Meanwhile in the north the Americans, whose capture of Mateur on May 3 has been the first striking advance of the Allies, met with no less success. Assisted by French units in the coastal area, steady progress was made towards Bizerte.

ARMISTICE REQUESTED

The entry of American tanks into this city at almost the same hour and minutes as our own armor arrived in Tunis marked the end of a very arduous advance through extremely difficult hill country.

On May 10 all fighting ceased in the area on the United States Corps. The German commander sent and requested an armistice. He met with a demand for immediate and unconditional surrender, which he accepted.

The house knows that among the great number of prisoners were included the major-general commanding the 5th Panzer Division, the commander of the Africa Corps artillery and of a crack anti-aircraft division and the general commanding the Manntеufel Division. In the area between Bizerte and Tunis, all resistance ceased Sunday morning when the divisional commander of all that was left of the 15th Panzer Division surrendered to our own 7th Armored Division.

These two veterans of the desert have been at each other's throat for the best part of two years, but that fight now has ended.

It is estimated that from May 5, we have taken at least 50,000 prisoners, mostly Germans, but this number is continually increasing.

Casualties among the 1st Army amounting to some 1,200, considering the scale of our attack and the tenacity of the enemy's defence, have not been too heavy. They bring the total of 1st Army casualties since April 17 up to 8,400, while the 8th Army casualties from April 20 to May 3 are just over 2,400.

The remaining Axis forces, apart from small pockets holding out here and there, are now holding part of the high ground south of Hammam Lif on north coast of the Cap Bon peninsula and a little strip of coastal plain and hilly country as far south as where the front of the 8th Army is. In this area, Axis forces still are fighting strongly but our advance southeastwards down the neck of the Cap Bon peninsula is making good progress.

Today we learned that yesterday afternoon Soliman was captured and Grombalia in the evening, almost half way down that neck on the way to where that road joins the coastal road which is only communication the troops have, who are facing the 8th Army in the Cap Bon peninsula.

Our tanks are driving on down that road.

Thus far, the battle has gone well.

It is still too early to say how long the last act will last or to speculate on enemy's hope of resistance or escape. But I think one can say that with no large towns or ports on which to base themselves and only Cap Bon peninsula in their hands their prospects are bleak.

They have in front of them our victorious troops, above them our air force, and behind them only beaches and sea dominated by our naval and air forces.

I know I am expressing the views of the whole house in rendering our thanks to the men of all the United Nations who have borne their part in this splendid victory.

Allied Captives On Italian Ship Victims of Fate

WASHINGTON, May 11.—(AP)—Large numbers of American and British prisoners of war went through "three days and nights of hell" aboard an Italian ship subjected to a grounding Allied aerial attack off the Tunisian coast, but the casualties miraculously were not enormous.

The U.S. war department quoted a British lieutenant's story of the attack on the prison ship which had left Bizerte harbor for Italy with a destroyer escort.

The destroyer, however, was sunk by bombers, and the crew refused to make the run to Sicily.

The lieutenant said: "We were bombed and strafed more than had a dozen times by our own aircraft." The ships finally went aground.

"We were all cramped into two holds with scarcely sufficient air to breathe, and for the last two days there was no water on the ship. There were no sanitary arrangements and we had little food."

Arriving British troops found small boats bringing load after load of the prisoners ashore from the grounded, battle-scarred vessel.

Severe Blizzard Sweeps Manitoba

WINNIPEG, May 11.—(CP)—For the second time in a week a blinding snow storm swept over Manitoba yesterday.

Farming operations were halted as more than an inch of snow fell over the country. Meteorological officials said the blizzard was the worst in 12 years.

Greatest fall was reported at Brandon, 140 miles west of Winnipeg, where 10 inches of snow covered the ground.

A number of persons left Winnipeg yesterday, however, for beach resorts on special trains, to prepare camps for the summer.

Reports from western Canada told of cool weather but no cities in Saskatchewan or Alberta reported snowfalls.

Last Thursday a blizzard swept over Manitoba, also bringing to a halt farming operations and delaying air and highway transportation.

Minister Explains Wheat Deliveries

OTTAWA, May 11.—(CP)—Trade Minister MacKinnon, in a reply tabled yesterday in the House of Commons for G. W. Winkler (Lib. Liscar) explained the policy followed by the Canadian wheat board in the allotment of railway cars for shipments from country elevators.

For the shipment of damp, low-grade and Durum wheat, cars are allotted as requested by the elevator company, the minister's reply said. Consequently there is free shipment of whatever stocks an elevator wishes to ship.

For shipments of high-grade wheat to the lakehead, cars are allotted in the proportion of the permanent storage capacity of the elevators at the point. For the shipment of wheat to mills, cars are allotted among the elevator companies in accordance with the number of elevators operated.

Three Meet Death As Experimental Plane Cracks Up

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 11.—(AP)—An experimental troop carrying and cargo plane built at the Louisville Curtiss-Wright Corporation factory carried three civilian crewmen to death late yesterday when it crashed 10 miles from here.

Lt.-Col. J. S. Dexter, director of production for the army at the plant, said "apparently the plane fell to pieces in the air but we have no details."

It had a wing speed of 108 feet. Its composition was 65 per cent wood.

We Want Freedom From WANT...FEAR..and FORCE

THERE'S nothing old-fashioned about this war.

The weapons are all new-fashioned.

The methods of attack and defence are new-fashioned.

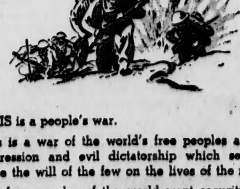
And so are our war aims.

Nations used to be content with victory.

But, this time, we shall not be satisfied with victory.

We shall not be content with peace.

We shall be satisfied only with freedom . . . freedom from Want, Fear and Force . . . freedom from every kind of oppression.



THIS is a people's war.

This is a war of the world's free peoples against aggression and evil dictatorship which seek to force the will of the few on the lives of the many.

The free peoples of the world want security and the right to think and act and plan their own lives in their own way.

They are tired of being pushed around.

They want to regain those things which free people everywhere hold dear.

IN Canada we are fighting and working and saving to secure for ourselves and others a world that will be really free.

Our future security is everybody's business.

Security has to be paid for.

It must come out of our own pockets.

You can protect your future and the future of your loved ones, by putting every cent you can save into the 4th Victory Loan.

Col. Ralston Makes Report On Camp Riot

OTTAWA, May 11. — (CP) — Defence Minister Ralston said yesterday in the House of Commons that relations between two regiments stationed a Camp Sussex, N.B., had been "most cordial" before an altercation Thursday night which resulted in the death of one man and injuries to several others.

Answering a question about the occurrence from M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, Col. Ralston said he had been informed by Brig. C. B. Topp, an officer at the camp, that there was no evidence of racial or religious friction between the Ontario regiment and the Quebec regiment before the altercation.

"SUDDEN ALTERCATION"

It seemed to have been "a sudden altercation."

(Pte. D. M. Bennett of McKellar, Ont., died in the Camp Sussex hospital Saturday night as a result of the fracas.)

Col. Ralston said the court of inquiry, constituted Friday, probably would sit until Tuesday and no complete statement could be made until it had completed its work.

The disturbance had occurred late at night and involved a small group from the Dufferin and Haldimand Rifles and Les Voltigeurs de Quebec.

There had been "hot words and arguments," said Col. Ralston.

The actual disturbance did not last more than 15 minutes.

The court of inquiry was constituted of two officers from the French-Canadian unit and two from the English-speaking unit.

The R.C.M.P. was conducting a separate investigation, and a representative of the New Brunswick attorney-general was present at the court of inquiry.

NO FURTHER TROUBLE

There had been a report of some further trouble Saturday, but this was not correct, said, Col. Ralston.

There had been gatherings of men which might have led to trouble and the men had been called back to camp.

There would be a most thorough investigation into the occurrence and disciplinary action would follow if necessary.

Hon. R. B. Hanson (Prog. Con. York-Sunbury) asked if the court of inquirys report would be made public.

Col. Ralston said such action would not be usual but information might be available.

PUZZLED BY SHOT

Mr. Coldwell said some people were puzzled as to where the bullet fired in the dispute had come from. He asked if the men were allowed to carry ammunition when not on duty.

Col. Ralston said they were not.

TORONTO, May 11—(CP)—The Telegram said yesterday in a dispatch from its Ottawa correspondent that "Animosity between soldiers of an Ontario and a Quebec regiment at Camp Sussex, N.B., last week, culminated in the fatal shooting of Pte. D. M. Bennett, of Ottawa . . ."

BOTH ACTIVE UNITS

The Telegram story said: "The regiments are both active service units, but in the main are depots for training purposes containing volunteers and home defence draftees. According to reports of the occurrence the trouble started on Thursday night when the men of the two units commenced jeering at each other . . ."

It was learned that Bennett was a bystander, having no direct connection with the disturbance.

Freedom Group In U.K. Against State Control

LONDON, May 11—(CP)—Newest organization in the political field here is the National League for Freedom, a group whose components indicate that it will fight against any proposed extensions of state control.

Headed by George Lambert, M.P. chairman of the National Liberals, the league is described as being outside party politics, pledged to loyalty to the government during war, and aiming after the war to "secure for the British people freedom from unnecessary government control."

OPPOSITE EXTREME

While the public apparently must wait to hear the exact political intentions of this group the other young addition to political forces, Commonwealth, is going to the other extreme, with increasing publicity (an indication of the financial strength of its backing) setting forth the party's main airs.

Briefly, they are these:

1—Greater equality of work, payment, sacrifice and opportunity.

2—Transfer to common ownership of services, industries, and companies in which managerial inefficiency is harming the war effort.

3—Reform of government supply organizations, elimination of civil service red tape, repudiation of any policy of vengeance in shaping the peace, maximum freedom of expression and establishment of effective works councils.

4—Preliminary post-war plans for education, employment and social services.

Tied Ball Game To Be Replayed

PITTSBURGH, May 11—(AP)—It took a ruling by National League President Ford Frick to satisfy fans and players, but now it's official that Pittsburgh Pirates and St. Louis Cardinals will replay their 3-3 tie game of Sunday, which was halted after nine innings by the Pennsylvania Sunday curfew law.

Frick said the game, because it had gone a full nine innings, would be replayed from the beginning and would not be finished from the point where the teams left off, as is the case in games stopped by the curfew law at less than nine innings.

The Story of Dieppe

By Quentin Reynolds

offensive. We want, if possible, to realize our objectives, but actually more important is the fact that the raid will show the Hun that we are on the alert and on the offensive. It will show him that he can't relax his vigilance anywhere on the coast line; that he must, in fact, strengthen his defenses. He can only do that by withdrawing troops, planes, guns from Russia. We want him to know that we are apt to hit anywhere at any time."

"Then one of the primary objectives is to get them to withdraw troops from Russia?" I asked.

Roberts nodded. "Definitely. Anything we can do to ease pressure on Russia helps tremendously. Of course, we'd rather move in on a big scale and establish what people so foolishly call a "second front"; but you know as well as I do the difficulties of that. Unfortunately," he added, smilingly, "the mass of our civilians and yours don't realize what the problem is, and they blame the British and the Americans and us Canadians for being dilatory."

I nodded agreement. "They've made a political question out of what is so obviously a military question."

SINCERITY IMPRESSIVE

Back in June (1942) I attended a few second-front meetings in Britain. They were held in places like Trafalgar Square, football ball parks and in large theatres in Manchester or Birmingham. The sincerity and honest intentions of the speakers and of the audiences were impressive. They wanted to help Russia, and only be establishing a second front in France could that be done on a large scale. Lord Beaverbrook led the second-front cheering section, and the Communist Party in Britain backed him up strongly. It was rather a strange alliance, but it was one in which both parties were in complete accord. I'd heard my Communist friends, Willie Gallagher, Ivor Montague, Ambassador Ivan Maisky and others voice telling arguments. The British Communists are not the long-haired wild-eyed creatures so often caricatured by American political cartoonists. No greater patriots exist in the British Empire than Willie Gallagher or Harry Pollitt. They were (and are) men who love their country and who would sacrifice anything to help win the war. I knew them all well and respected them, as do even their political opponents. I had returned from Russia some months before, full of admiration and praise for the Russian people, and I hadn't been backward about proclaiming and writing what I thought of them. I had also written and told how urgently the Russians needed our help, and that the establishment of a second front was apparently the most effective way of giving them thta help. We all knew that convoys, bound for Russia, were getting an unmerciful beating, and that the material which arrived there was but a tiny drop in the bucket. I was as ardent a second-fronter as anyone, to such an extent, that men like Willie and Harry thought of me as a sort of unofficial member of the party. Once I kidded Willie Gallagher about why I liked Russia.

"Willie," I told him, "Russia is the only country in the world where there is no communism."

"Ah, you just don't understand communism." Willie would answer in his thick Scottish accent, and he was probably right. Your preconceived ideas of communism receive a terrific jolt when you go to Russia. What they have there is something so different from what the text books tell us communism is, that you end up quite bewildered. I know I did, but was there only three months—long enough to get a slight glimpse into the hearts and minds of the people, but not long enough to even scrape the surface of understanding the present Russian political philosophy.

ARDENT SECOND-FRONTERS

But it was impossible not to like and sympathize with men of the Gallagher, Pollitt and Montague type. In Britain, the second-front cry was by no means confined to members of the Communist Party. In addition to Beaverbrook, brilliant journalists like young Tom Driberg, Frank Owen, Michael Foot and the editors of most Fleet Street newspapers were ardent second-fronters. I thought I'd do an article for Collier's, blasting the British military and political leaders for their apparent lackadaisical tactics and, of course, including American military leaders in my condemnation. I went all around London asking just one question. "Why hasn't a second front been opened?" I only asked men who knew me well enough to realize they could talk off the record without fear of being actually quoted. I talked to men like Averell Harriman, Ambassador Anthony Biddle and a few of the generals serving under Eisenhower. Eisenhower's generals are, I think, the best in the world. They are all young, vigorous, tough and aggressive. They are reticent about only one thing —they don't want their views printed. Trained to secrecy and discipline, they hate the thought of dramatizing themselves or of getting any personal publicity. I was lucky enough to get into a poker game with four of them one night. We talked about the problems involved in a frontal attack on France, while we drew to inside straights. Any reporter who plays poker with high-ranking officers knows damned well there is a rigid implication that anything said by them is off the record. That's why I can't name the generals or quote them. But they were unanimous in their views of an immediate second front. It just couldn't be done as yet. Not in France, anyhow.

I lost 20 pounds (80 dollars) to those brilliant exponents of five-card stud and, when the game was over, they really felt a bit conscience-stricken about taking me so badly. I was the only civilian in the game, and they were afraid I'd think that they'd gang-ed up on me. But I told them that the losses they gave me was well worth the 80 bucks.

"I'm probably the only reporter in Britain, who calls you four generals by your first names," I reminded them. "That's worth eighty dollars to Collier's and to me. And the lesson you gave me was well worth what I lost."

I never saw better poker players than those American generals. I was completely outclassed. Their strategy closely resembled military strategy. Occasionally, they would feint with a small pair and then withdraw only to counter-attack vigorously again with three aces. Once you let them get off on an offensive, you had to regreat precipitously, or you'd get your brains knocked out. Often they would toss a smoke-screen of bluffing at you and then, when you realized that this was merely a tentative "feeling-out" manoeuvre, you'd rush in over word that Allied military instructors were reported enroute to Turkey and that Turkish staff officers were visiting the Middle eastern theatre.

Nazi preparations against invasion appeared to centre on Bulgaria, Greece and the Dodecanese Islands between Turkey and southern Greece. Greek and Turkish residents of the Dodecanese were being evacuated.

Greece was said to be nearly cut off from the outside and movements along the Balkan frontiers were restricted. Nazi authorities were cracking down hard on civilians in both Greece and Bulgaria.

A Hungarian dispatch said that dancing and public rejoicing had been forbidden in Hungary.

A report from Zagreb stated that the arrival of Henrich Himmler, Nazi Gestapo chief, touched off a major purge in which hundreds were arrested in Croatian cities.

German authorities declared "police martial law" throughout Holland in an effort to crush rising resistance.

Johnny Allen Pays Dividends

CHICAGO, May 11. — (AP) — Branch Rickey has made some shrewd deals in his day but none probably ever was more timely than the one he engineered bringing Johnny Allen back to the Dodgers after disposing of him when he first became head of the Brooklyn club.

Johnny went into Friday's game with Boston Braves in the seventh inning with the score deadlocked and pitched ahutout ball for three innings as his mates went on to club out a 9-7 victory and give Johnny his third success without a defeat.

Turkey Big Factor

By JOHN A. PARRIS

Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

LONDON, May 11.—Axis fears of an early Allied invasion of southern Europe increased today as a result of the conquest of Tunisia and the position of neutral Turkey again became a highly important factor in the military plans of both sides.

Dispatches from Ankara indicated that far-reaching changes in Turkey's foreign policy might be expected because of the Allied victory in North Africa. The British United Press correspondent cabled that "The political effects on Turkey's foreign policy after this smashing Allied victory are tremendous."

The Turkish policy has been one of neutrality plus an alliance with Britain, so any changes probably would call for abandonment of neutrality in favor of a more pro-Allied stand.

SIGNIFICANT PARLEY

It was considered significant that President Ismet Inonu of Turkey conferred over the weekend with the German ambassador, Franz Von Papen, and that the Turkish foreign minister Numan Menemencioglu received the British ambassador.

There were reports in Ankara that Adolf Hitler might try to prod Bulgaria into seizing Turkish Thrace which forms a ready-made bridgehead between Europe and Asia Minor should Turkey decide to abandon her active neutrality.

Tension was reported mounting daily in the Balkans and German reports showed increasing concern over the Allied air offensive against Greece and Bulgaria.

Ankara dispatches said that Turkey was mobilizing her reserves and that the Turkish army was on a war footing.

Turkey has been one of the only countries in the world to remain at peace with both Germany and Russia since the start of the war.

German General Wept As Surrender Made To Yanks in Tunisia

By HAROLD V. BOYLE

WITH THE U.S. ARMY IN TUNISIA, May 9 — (Delayed) — (AP)—The first herald of the collapse of German arms in Africa was a freshly-shaven staff officer who stepped up to the tent of an American General this sunny Sunday morning, and said:

"What are your terms of surrender?"

The General, whose American 1st Armored Division had trapped 15,000 Nazi tank and infantry troops around Djebel El Faour on the peninsula east of Bizerte after two days of fighting, told him:

"My terms are unconditional surrender, no sabotage of German equipment and no attempt at evacuation by sea. We will kill all who try to get out."

The German staff officer relayed the terms of surrender to Maj.-Gen. Fritz Krause, artillery officer commanding the Nazi sector facing the American.

Gen. Krause accepted. He took the defeat in good grace.

His field-gray uniform was wrinkled and he wore neither cap nor helmet.

Smaller, older, impeccably dressed, Maj.-Gen. Borowitz of the 15th Nazi Armored Division, burst into tears when he first reached the headquarters of the armored division which had battered his prize legion to pieces.

"I am in truth a general without a command," said Borowitz. "I have not any division split in two and my panzers wiped out. "I have no panzers, no artillery, not even a grenadier."

Penny Is Removed From Tot's Throat

Doctors at Edmonton's General hospital using a bronchoscope last night extracted a penny from the throat of 22-months-old John Desjhoux which the tot swallowed at his home at Picardville, 40 miles north of here three days ago.

The child's parents said they thought the boy would "be all right" but when it became apparent he was in distress, they brought him to hospital yesterday. The operation took only a few minutes.

It is the second such extraction for doctors at the hospital within a week. Last Wednesday they recovered a penny which three-year-old Loretta Champaigne had swallowed.

Two Ministers Appointed to College Staff

The Rev. Edmund J. Thompson, M.A., Ph. D., and the Rev. D. J. C. Elson, M.A., have been appointed to the staff of St. Stephen's College, affiliated with the University of Alberta, the retiring principal, the Rev. Dr. A. S. Tuttle, announced Tuesday.

Dr. Thompson received his B.A. degree in 1926 from the University of Alberta, and his M.A. degree, also from the university, in 1928. He attended the University of Chicago for three years, from 1928 to 1931, when he was awarded the Ph. D. degree. At the time Dr. Thompson received his testamur, in 1928, he was elected valedictorian of his class.

RETURNED TO WEST

Though unusual opportunities were offered him in the east, he chose to return to the Canadian West, and became minister of the Leduc charge from 1931 to 1935. While in this field, he was elected chairman of the Edmonton Presbytery, being probably the youngest man ever to hold that position.

While at Leduc he completed the Ph. D. thesis and was granted the degree by the University of Chicago.

From 1935 to 1941, Dr. Thompson was minister at Aurora, Ontario. While in charge there, he was elected chairman of the Toronto Central Presbytery, which is one of the most influential of the United Church.

In 1941 Dr. Thompson became pastor of St. John's Church, where he is now serving.

He offered himself to his Alma Mater to take over the chair of Christian Theology and Philosophy of Religion, which was vacated by the resignation of Dr. Tuttle. The appointment has been ratified by the Board of Colleges, meeting in Toronto.

WON GOLD MEDAL

Rev. Mr. Elson received his testamur in theology from St. Stephen's in 1937, at which time he received the J. M. Harrison gold medal in theology, and was also awarded half interest in the John M. Millar memorial travelling scholarship.

Spending a term at the University of Chicago and one at Union College, New York, Mr. Elson received his M.A. from New York in 1938.

He took up pastorates at Turner Valley and later at Lacombe, where he is now stationed. Mr. Elson succeeds the late Dr. C. Jackson in the chair of New Testament and Church History. During the past year he has supplied the New Testament work at the college.

He is at present studying with the university, toward the degree of bachelor of divinity, and with Columbia university, New York, towards the doctor of philosophy's degree.

NEW PRINCIPAL

Dr. Tuttle, who is retiring as principal of the college, will be succeeded by the Rev. Dr. A. D Miller.

The retiring principal has just returned from meetings of the Board of Colleges in Toronto. He will give the convocational address at forthcoming graduating exercises of the university next week, and will retire to Victoria, B.C.

City Airman Lost On Convoy Route

Born at Lachine, Que., PO. MacDonald attended school here and was a student at the University of Alberta in engineering for one year and later was employed by Aircraft Repair Ltd. After enlisting in the Royal Canadian Artillery and serving for a time in Dundern, Sask., he transferred to the R.C.A.F. and was graduated at Rivers, Man. Posted at Toronto he was later commissioned as a pilot officer air bomber and in this capacity was going overseas.

PO. MacDonald's father is a widely-known architect. He has two sisters, Joan and Stephanie; three brothers, William of Calgary, Eric at home, and Sgt. Ian MacDonald, R.C.A.F., an instructor at Prince Albert.

Solve Mystery Of Banknotes Flying in Air

MONTREAL, May 11—(CP)—The mystery of the flying banknotes was solved yesterday.

The mystery developed Sunday in neighboring Outremont when a financial windstorm struck Davaar avenue—the wind began blowing banknotes of the larger denominations down the street. There was a rush and those on the spot did well for themselves.

Yesterday, Sam Latansky put a claim in with the police for the money, saying that he had lost $863 as he left his Davaar avenue home. He said he thought he had put the bills into his pocket, but apparently they slipped into the street and were swept up later by a gust of wind.

Police handed Latansky $342 of the money which had been recovered.

Novel Seating

Attractively-Decorated Alcan Cafe on Jasper Opens to Public Today

Suggestive of the newly-created road to Alaska, of which Edmonton is the gateway, the Alcan Cafe, facing 98 street on Jasper avenue, today opens its doors to the general public, Walter Shpiel, proprietor, announces.

Faced with large windows which allow the attractively-decorated interior plenty of natural light, there is no hint of over-crowding within. A three-quarter-length counter of inlaid block top, runs along one side, while private booths line the other side, as well as occupying a portion of the centre of the room.

A novel arrangement is the low-set counter with continuous bench seat, capable of holding approximately 16 patrons who may wish to sit near the entrance while enjoying a soft drink or a cup of coffee. A second room, located to one side of the premises, has been turned into further lunch room facilities, with both booths and open tables.

Placed in handy positions are the coffee urns and milk coolers, cutlery and other tableware.

ATTRACTIVELY PAINTED

Color scheme of the main dining room is in blue, white and cream, while guests' washrooms have also been painted in bright hues.

Seating capacity of the Alcan cafe is slightly over 200 at one time. A staff of about 20 will be employed there.

Walter Shpiel, who came to Canada from Poland when he was 23 years old, has been in the catering business in Edmonton for over 20 years. He is married and has two sons.

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

ALTHOUGH the weather Monday evening, without any undue stretch of imagination might easily have been deemed more suitable for football, it didn't appear to discourage U.S. Army baseball enthusiasts in their workout at Renfrew Park.

Over 20 players went through a brisk session under direction of Capt. Frenk Wrigglesworth, but the Army entry's pilot stated he wouldn't be ready for a few days yet to make any announcement as to a probable roster. It was quite apparent however, that the soldiers will be able to take care of themselves in the senior ball loop.

It was noted that Harley Miller, speedy forward of the U.S. Engineers in the City Basketball league last winter was taking care of everything which came within a half mile or so of his shortstop precinct Tail John Gulickson, leading scorer in the hoop league is also a candidate for the team and so is Benny Cuellar, another basketeer.

NICOL VERSUS THOMPSON

WEDNESDAY night's fastball opener at Kingsway Park will afford fans the unusual opportunity of witnessing two prospective pros battling for a place in the spotlight.

Helen Nicol, of the Army and Navy Pats and Annabelle Thompson of the Walkrites, considered the province's two outstanding pitchers by scouts of the new girls' pro league are expected to be the starting chuckers. The two are leaving on Saturday for Chicago where they will compete with 100 players handpicked from all over the United States and Canada, for berths in the circuit sponsored by Philip K. Wrigley, owner of the Chicago Cubs.

This year's edition of the Walkrites is almost the identical team which won the western Canadian title last summer and added to the regular are three outside players: Irene Faker, Regina; Jean Highett, Edson and Verda Griffith, recently from Kimberley, but originally from Lloydminster.

IMPLEMENTING AN IDEA

THE $600 vote made last night by the City Council for the purpose of adequately fencing Boyle Street grounds will certainly be appreciated not only by those actively associated in the project, but ultimately by the hundreds of youngsters who will directly benefit.

The original committee which undertook to provide additional fastball (softball) facilities for an immediate total estimated at 240 boys and girls embarked on an ambitious program, but the work already appears to be well underway.

That committee which at the start consisted of Frank Drayton, Rev. J. T. Stephens, A. R. Lawrence, Bill Ruff and Herbert C. Thompson, but to which other willing workers have since been added are to be congratulated on their excellent progress.

Picked Up Where Young Left Off

For 19 Years Alex the Great Proved Matchless as Pitcher

By HARRY GRAYSON

NEW YORK.—Cy Young, pitching for the Boston Nationals, was beaten in his final game in 1911, 1-0, by a Philadelphia recruit named Grover Cleveland Alexander. So it was that tall, freckle-faced, sandy-haired Old Pete as a youngster picked up where another immortal left off.

Alex the Great did it with a sidearm curve, fast ball and amazing control. He quickly picked up all the tricks. From the outset, he looked and thought like a veteran. He was as cool as a polar bear squatting on an iceberg. There were no frills, little conversation. He seemed indolent.

Grover Alexander had a rubber arm. Had he lived to a training code, there is no telling how long he would have lasted. As it was, he got in 19 years of pitching and matchless effectiveness with good, bad and indifferent major league clubs. The quality of his support made no difference to the brilliant right-hander from the Nebraska farm.

Alexander established big league records that still stand and holds more National League marks than you can shake a stick at, yet is best remembered as the veteran, supposedly on his last legs, who struck out Tony Lazzeri of the Yankees on four pitched balls with the bases full to give the St. Louis Cardinals the seventh game and victory in the 1926 World Series.

BASES DRUNK, NOT ALEX

That is one they will reconstruct and retell down the ages in the spirit of the ancient Roman epic of Horatious at the Bridge.

Alex's reputation as a Grade A drinking man made it plausible and a good story, so descriptive writers practically had him staggering as he took his time coming in from deep right field that chilly Sunday afternoon in Yankee Stadium.

It was said that Rogers Hornsby had given him permission to celebrate following his victory the day before. When Hornsby signalled for his remarkable relief performance in the seventh inning, the story was that a teammate had to wake him from a nap.

"I wasn't any more drunk than the fellows who wrote that story," says Alex.

"Hornsby the night before told me to be ready—that he might have to use me.

"I didn't see any reason why I should run in from the bullpen. I suspected that Lazzeri was just as anxious as I was, and on the way I was thinking how to pitch to him. He must have been anxious for he bit at pretty bad balls.

"The first one I threw him was a curve and was called a ball. Then I gave him a high fast one inside and he hit a long foul down the left field line. That was the only fast one he saw. I then struck him out with two curves."

As for Alex being about washed up at the moment, he logged 31 games for the Red Birds the following campaign, 16 the next.

ALEXANDER'S RECORDS

Alex won 28 games for the Phillies in his first major league year, the 20th century high for a freshman. In winning 31 games while pitching the Phillies to a pennant in 1915, he turned in four one-hit performances, an all-time record for one season.

In three seasons, starting in 1915, Alex bagged 30 or more games, 33 in 1916. Christy Mathewson—1903-05—is the only other 20th century pitcher who was able to pitch the 30s three years in succession.

Alex toiled in more games, 696, and won more, 373, than any other National League pitcher. He dropped 208. For six years he led the league in number of complete games, a major league record shared only by Walter Johnson. His earned run average of 1.22 in 1915 is the National League record for pitchers working in 250 games or more.

He holds the National League record for number of years leading the league in earned run average—five—and in games won —six. He is the only National League pitcher who ever topped the circuit in both won and lost percentage and ERA in two different years.

Alex pitched 90 shutouts, the lifetime National League record. His 16 shutouts in 1916 set the present major league record for one year. In his first year, he pitched four successive shutouts, shares this freshman mark with Ed Reulbach.

Sergeant Alexander saw three months of action in France with the 342nd Field Artillery in World War I.

Grover Cleveland Alexander could pitch there, too.

First Game in Men's Circuit On Thursday

WITH the outlook for a banner year exceptionally promising, Edmonton's fastball season gets away tomorrow with the opening game in the senior girls' division between Army and Navy Pats and Walk-Rites scheduled for Kingsway at 7 p.m.

Mayor John W. Fry will give the new 1943 season the official touch by tossing the first ball. Major Klingscale, U.S. Army Air Corps, has consented to do the batting, while on the receiving end will be Ald. H. D. Ainley, president of the Edmonton Fastball Association. The School Boys' Band will be in attendance and other teams in the league will also be on hand.

The men's league opens on Thursday night, the opposing teams being No. 3 "M" Depot and U.S. Army Air Corps.

An added feature of tomorrow's game is the fact that Helen Nicol and Annabelle Thompson, who leave later in the week for Chicago for tryouts in the new pro softball circuit will be the starting pitchers. Ray Barson will be chief umpire.

Murray Saidman, manager of Walkrites stated last night the probable lineup of his team would be: pitchers, Annabelle Thompson and Elsie Vaughan; 1b, Mickey McConnell; 2b, Jean Barton; 3b, Margaret Boyce; shortstop, Frances Moran; rover, Jean Beatty; lf, Mabel McCormick; cw. Vick's Panos; rf, Isabel Gilroy.

Irene Faker of Regina, utility infielder and catcher; Jean Highett, of Edson, infielder; Verda Griffith, Lloydminster, pitcher and Dolly Lane Brown, third base, will also be available.

Manager Clare Hollingsworth Monday night had not decided just how his team would line up, with the exception that Helen Nicol would be the starting pitcher with Kay Heim as catcher.

It is likely however that Mary Mercer will be at first, Connie Strachan at Second and Flora Stewart at third, with Beryl Westbrook, who is also a pitcher probably filling in at short.

For centre field the Pats have Blanche Tuviotdale and others available include June Cragg, Ella Hiron, Mary Hegarty, Helen Morris and Marie Montray.

Kingsway Practices

U.S. Army Engineers will practice tonight at the Kingsway fastball park from 6 o'clock to 8 and Walk-Rites of the Senior Girls' Fastball League, will work out from 8 to 9.

Most of the camphor now used in North America comes from southern pine trees.

Four-Team Loop Possible

Prospects For Junior Ball Appear Reasonably Bright

A FOUR-TEAM junior baseball league for Edmonton again this season looms as a distinct possibility as a result of the preliminary meeting held on Monday night.

The survey made by those interested in promoting ball for the youngsters discloses the fact that there is ample material available for the four clubs and in the event of the circuit being organized boys in the 14 to 18 year class will be included.

There will be no difficulty in securing sufficient uniforms for the players as the junior league already owns some and others are available. In addition the league has its own catcher's equipment and there will be no need for any expenditure in that direction.

The most pressing need at the moment is the matter of sufficient finance to procure an adequate supply of baseballs and for retaining the services of competent umpires.

It is expected that the senior league will be approached with a view to securing some assistance in order that the young lads might be enabled to carry on. No doubt a satisfactory arrangement can also be made for use of Renfrew Park so as not to interfere with senior activities.

Many players who took part in the junior circuit during the past two years are now in the services, but a few who are still in the city and who have not reached the call-up age are candidates for places on teams in the senior league.

Racing Starts at Suffolk Downs

BOSTON, May 11.—(AP)—Crowd 15,000 ushered in the Eastern Racing Association's "rroiley car" meeting of 60 days at Suffolk Downs Monday, ignoring closed parking lots to make the start one of the most successful in the nine-years' history of racing in Massachusetts.

Mrs. D. B Miller's Incoming, well ridden by the veteran Tommy Luther, just got up to win the feature offering, the $1,500 Winthrop Handicap of a mile, by a neck from Glen Feikens's Eric Knight.

Mrs. Sally Miller's Gala Fly ran third, three lengths behind, and there in front of Mrs. W. W. Adams' Arthur Murray.

The winner ran the mile in 1:39 2-5. Paid $9.80, $4.80 and $3.20. Eric Knight paid $6.80 and $4.80, while Gala Fly returned $4.40.

13,972 Attend Opening Day of Belmont Races

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP)—A crowd of 13,972 customers took in opening day of Belmont Park's 24-day race meeting, and saw such things as a 40-1 shot win one stake and last year's Kentucky Derby winner, Shut Out, finish sixth in another.

Despite transportation restrictions, the turnout was only 3,000 less than for last year's opener.

With an earlier unaccustomed first-race post time, which saw many missing the opening dash, the folks tossed in $995,056 after contributing less than $60,000 in two of the three first races.

The long-shot surprise package was Mrs. Ames, from the barn of Henry Lustig, local restauranteur who made her racing debut by winning the 45th running of the Fashion Stakes for two-year-old fillies at the fancy pay-off of $81.90 for $2.

In the 50th running of the Toboggan, Mrs. Payne Whitney's Devil Diver came charging through the last quarter-mile of the six-furlong sprint down the Widener straight-away to win by a length. Shut Out, stablemate of Devil Diver, and making his first start since coming down with leg trouble last fall, wound up sixth 4½ lengths back of the winner.

Devil Diver, carrying 116 pounds and given a slashing ride by Georgie Woolf, picked up $5,625 for finishing a length in front of Mrs. Josephine Grimes' With Regards, who took the place spot from Louis Mayer's Thumbs Up. Mrs. Tilyou Christopher's Doubirah, co-favorite in the betting, faded and wound up eighth. Devil Diver paid off at $7.10 for $2.

Pats Practice

Army and Navy Pats are holding a fastball practice at Victoria Hi grounds tonight at 8 o'clock. All of the positions on the team have not yet been filled and an invitation is extended to new players.

Mutuels Hit $10,090,934

Daily Betting at Pimlico Increased by 20 Per Cent.

BALTIMORE, May 11—(AP)—Wagering at the 15-day Pimlico race meeting which closed Saturday resulted in an average daily handle more than 20 per cent higher than last spring's figures.

Maryland Jockey Club officials said Monday the total mutuel handle of the 15 days of the regular Pimlico season was $10,090,934, a daily average of $672,865.

Last spring, Pimlico conducted only a 15-day meeting, during which $6,689,199 was poured through the mutuel windows. This figured out to an average daily handle of $557,433, so that the 1943 average represents an increase of 20.7 per cent over last spring.

The fate of Pimlico's fall season, as well as that of the three other major Maryland tracks, remains in doubt, meanwhile pending a meeting of the State Racing Commission tentatively scheduled for next week.

Gov. Herbert R. O'Connor last week signed into law a legislature-approved bill to permit the commission to assign as much as 50 days of racing to any one track, so long as the total in the state did not exceed 100 days.

The law formerly permitted not more than 20 days at one track, and the change will permit Pimlico to conduct 30 days of fall sport if the commission approves. In addition to its regular meeting, the Maryland Jockey Club this spring conducted a five-day charity meeting in which more than $79,000 was raised for the national war fund.

Montreal Royals Are Shutout 1-0 By Jersey City

MONTREAL, May 11—(CP)—Hugh East, veteran right-hander of the Jersey City Giants, shutout Montreal Royals in an International league fixture here yesterday as his team won 1-0. East pitched almost perfect baseball, allowing the Royals only five scattered hits and not giving up a single base on balls. He struck out nine.

Wes Flowers, Royal's left-hander who opposed East, was almost as good. But it was a base on balls in the second inning that proved his undoing.

Only Year Ago Count Fleet Not Very Popular

NEW YORK, May 11.—(AP)—You wouldn't say Jockey Johnny Longden was scared that morning at Belmont about a year ago, but he jumped off Count Fleet's back as if he'd suddenly discovered some extra sharp nails in the saddle.

He led the tall lanky colt back to Trainer Don Cameron.

"You," he declared flatly, "can take this crazy animal and ship him to Shanghai or grind him up into hamburgers. He's nuts."

Yet Cameron says it was right there that he discovered he had the makings of a great horse.

"I knew," Cameron said Monday as he returned from Pimlico, where the Count easily added the Preakness Saturday to his earlier Kentucky Derby triumph, "Longden probably had something there, at that. The Count must have spotted a shadow or a bit of paper or something on the track.

"Anyway, I've never seen a horse take off like that. Before you knew it, he'd leaped an eighth of a mile and headed right for the outside fence.

"Johnny pulled him up just in time, or both of 'em might have been hurt going into the railing.

"You see, when the Count took off like that, I had the stop watch on him. I just happened to catch him between poles for an eighth of a mile while he was running away. And when I looked at the watch, I wouldn't believe it. He'd gone that eighth in 10 2/5 seconds."

This is practically flying. There is no world record listed for an eighth of a mile, but just by way of comparison, the fastest a quarter mile ever has been run was 21⅕ seconds, by a little thing called Bob Wade, in 1890.

"We straightened him out, however, by putting blinkers on him, and you know he's been quite a horse since," said Cameron.

Indians' Pitcher Fractures Ankle

CLEVELAND, May 11.—(AP)—Mel Harder, dean of Cleveland Indians' pitching staff, fractured a right ankle bone in last Saturday's game at St. Louis, the team's physician said yesterday. Dr. E. B. Castle declared the injury probably would keep the veteran right-hander out of the lineups for two months.

The pitcher was injured as he slid into base in the game he lost 3-2 to the Browns.

Writers Say Game Is Slow

British Fans Not Impressed By United States Football

By SCOTT YOUNG

LONDON, May 11.—(CP Cable)—It was a football game that brought United States army field artillery a 19-6 victory over the Engineers at White City Stadium Saturday —American football played under college rules for the championship of the United States European theatre of operations —but from British newspaper accounts yesterday a Canadian fan could hardly tell it from rounders.

To put it succinctly, British sports writers did not like it. The more polite commentators admitted carefully that they might have found more merit in it if they had known the rules better. Others—and they were in the majority—just growled the British equivalent of "it stinks" and let it go at that.

Then there was the scholarly type of writer like the one who explained to his readers that the game was slow because of the "long forward pass often brought into use, the obstruction of players without the ball and the numerous substitutes."

I would like to see the reaction of Lew Hayman or Reg Threlfall to being told their carefully-planned forward passes slow up the game (this character didn't even say whether he preferred the completed or uncompleted passes) and that all the hours they spend teaching "obstruction" (using in the lessons the colloquial North American term "interference") has no other result than boring the spectators.

Another writer complained about the huddles, although admitting grudgingly: "In them, no doubt, the tactics for the next move are arranged." Another, commenting on the excellence of the passing and ball handling, said: "The slick passing movements are due, no doubt (these English sportswriters are the soul of caution), to prearranged tactics. Each player knowing who would get the ball and to whom he was to pass it."

Army Auxiliary Service Fight Proves Big Success

By JACK CUDDY
Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

MONTREAL, May 11.—The auxiliary service division of the Canadian Army was lavishly congratulated yesterday for the magnificent success of its first professional fight promotion—the Johnny Greco-Terry Young brawl at the Forum Saturday night.

The 10-round lightweight contenders' battle was successful from every angle, although the gratifying crowd of 5,387, and gate of approximately $19,000 set no records.

Private Greco of the Canadian Army won the unanimous decision after one of the best fights ever staged in the Dominion. Jolting Johnny's 20th straight victory earned him two big outdoor bouts at New York this summer.

WIDELY BROADCAST

THE scrap—promoted by the army to stimulate recruiting, to help the army athletic fund, to bolcivilian and military morale, and to strengthen the bonds of friendship between the United States and Canada—was broadcast over the most extensive international radio hookup since the Louis-Conn battle in 1941.

Service men throughout Canada and on foreign fields listened in on one of the best bouts ever put on the air.

The Canadian army was delighted with Greco's grand showing as he fought in his native city for the first time in 17 months—for the first time since he rose to pugilistic prominence. It felt justifiably proud that 19-year-old Johnny earned the right to carry the Maple Leaf emblem twice into outdoor New York rings this summer—once as challenger for the world's lightweight crown.

MAY FIGHT ARMSTRONG

MIKE JACOBS of New York, who witnessed the bout, said he hoped to match Greco and Henry Armstrong, former triple champion, at the Polo Grounds June 11. After that he will give Johnny a title shot at the winner of the bout between Champion Beau Jack and Bob Montgomery, scheduled for Madison Square Garden May 21.

Saturday night's tilt lived up to advance notices. Bull-shouldered Young of New York made a great fight, but Greco's short, smashing hooks to head and body took just enough steam out of tough Terry to prevent the latter's winning.

Young gave Greco a thorough trouncing in the frist round, but Johnny's battering attack in the second session slowed up the New Yorker. Young never completely recaptured his early sparkle, although he did win the fourth and eighth rounds and fight on even terms in the ninth and tenth. Greco, at 136, had an advantage of two pounds.

Lieut. Benny Leonard of the U.S. wartime service, former lightweight champion, did an excellent job of refereeing. He said the fight was so close he might have called it a draw if he had a vote. But in Montreal the referee does not vote. Three judges determined the decision. The British United Press agreed with them, scoring five round for Greco, three for Young and two even.

Golfer Retires

OTTAWA, May 11—(CP)—Karl Keffer, professional at the Royal Ottawa Golf club for more than 30 years and former Canadian title holder has retired from the club as pro Ernie Wakelam, his assistant for nine years, has been appointed acting professional at the Royal Ottawa.

Keffer, a veteran of the First Great War, has held the Canadian Open and Canadian professional golf titles.

Wartime Schedule Gives Majors Two Day Rest Period

NEW YORK, May 11—(AP)—The major leagues had time yesterday to take stock of their young season and in a general way the inventory must have been satisfying.

All clubs were idle Monday, and will be again today, as a result of the wartime schedule, providing double open dates for east-west travel.

Action will be resumed Wednesday with the first inter-sectional competition of the year with these pairings:

American League—New York at Chicago, Boston at St. Louis, Philadelphia at Detroit and Washington at Cleveland (night).

National League—Chicago at New York, Cincinnati at Philadelphia, St. Louis at Boston and Pittsburgh at Brooklyn (twilight).

In the most recent games the week-day turnouts have been no smaller than expected and the Sunday crowds have been satisfactory—a total of 147,000 Sunday and 183,000 the week before.

The New York Yankees in the American League and Brooklyn Dodgers in the National League have stepped out in front about as expected. The big disappointments have been Bosgon Red Sox in the American and Chicago Cubs in the National, both now resting in seventh place.

Up till now the eastern clubs have been playing each other and the western clubs battling among themselves. This has resulted in such things as the Dodger meeting the Phillies nine times in 18 games. The Phillies turned out to be no pushovers, but the intersectional strife should produce a better line on the all around strength of both leagues.

The first round of east-west fixing will last 12 days, after which the leagues can canvass the situation again.

Scoreless Draw In Soccer Final

LONDON, May 11.—(CP)—A replay will be necessary in the Scottish northeastern Mitchell Cup final as Raith Rovers and Aberdeen battled to a scoreless draw on Saturday.

In the semi-finals of the Scottish XI Cup Hibernians defeated Partick Thistle 1-0 but the other game, Motherwell versus Airdrieonians, was postponed.

At Cardiff, Wales and England battled to a 1-1 draw in an international match. Wales fired by an enthusiastic crowd of 25,000 nearly sprang a surprise. They stepped into an early lead which they held until almost the closing minute.

Both in Sixth Place

Philadelphia Baseball Teams Out of Major League Cellars

By JACK SMITH

PHILADELPHIA, May 11.—(AP)—Here it is with the baseball season less than a month old and both the Phillies and the A's are out of the cellar. And fans, players and even experts are saying, though with due caution, that perhaps the end has come to the great Philadelphia baseball drought.

Both Connie Mack's A's and Bill Cox's Phillies are in sixth place in their respective leagues and behind each rating lies a tale. It took the war to do it.

Connie, his team hit by the draft, brought up Jo-Jo White, ex-Detroit Tiger, from Minor Lague Seattle—and White now leads the league with 25 hits and is tied for second in runs scored. He hired Mexican Jesse Flores of Los Angeles—after Chicago Cubs had passed him—and Flores now is being hailed as one of the top craftsmen in his line.

Furthermore, Dick Siebert, finally having shed his knee brace, is fielding with the best, and Pitchers Russ Christopher, Roger Wolff and Lum Harris look good again, too.

Then there's the amazing renaissance of the Phillies. Last year they got so far behind that the Philadelphia Record put them in a league of their own in the standings—the Bush league. Now the same paper hails them under the heading "Phillies Ticking—and How!"

The club's Jimmy Wadell, Danny Litwhiler, Pinky May, Earl Naylor, Danny Murtaugh and Ron Northey are drawing streams of praise from experts, fans and new Manager Buck Harris, and the Phils' new owner is sticking to his pre-season prediction that the team will finish sixth or higher.

CANADIAN SPORTSHOTS

By CHARLES EDWARDS

TORONTO, May 11. — (CP) — So FIL Lt. Eddie Thompson is "missing in action at sea." That's tough! Maybe Jim Coleman of the Toronto Globe and Mail put it best when he wrote: "It is invidious to refer to individuals in these days when the finest flower of our manhood is being cut down on foreign fields, but Eddie exemplified all the finest things in a young man, and he was the kind of fellow whom any parents would have been proud to call their 'son,' and any man would have been proud to call him 'brother'."

Eddie was a Toronto boy. But he belonged to all Canada because he was one of those athletically gifted young men whose names appear prominently on the sports pages. Eddie ranked with Canada's greatest football players. He was a captain of champions, captain of the mighty Toronto R.C.A.F. Hurricanes who won the Canadian championship and the Grey Cup last autumn. Above all he was a sportman; he was, in the words of his coach, Lew Hayman, "gentleman competitor."

Yes, Eddie was an all-star. At 26, he had been recognized for five years as one of Canada's greatest running halfbacks. A track star, he had speed to burn.

A product of Toronto's Oakwood Collegiate, Eddie starred at football at University of Toronto. In 1938 with Toronto Balmy Beach he was chosen for the Canadian Press all-star O.R.F.U. team. He repeated in 1939 and that year was the only O.R.F.U. player selected for CP's all-eastern team.

With Camp Borden in 1940, Eddie again was chosen O.R.F.U. all-star and was named to the all-eastern second team. There was no all-eastern last year but Eddie was an Ontario Union all-star.

J. P. Fitzgerald of the Toronto Telegram writes of Eddie: "Neither Canada nor any other country can lose boys like this without a real feeling of sacrifice."

Wilson Anxious To Trade Novikoff

CHICAGO, May 11.—(AP)—Manager Jim Wilson of Chicago Cubs is eager to make a deal for Lou Novikoff if he can get an outfielder who bats right-handed, the Chicago Tribune said today.

Novikoff, who has held out 51 days for a $10,000 contract, was placed on the ineligible list by Ford Frick, president of the National League, and would have to be reinstated before donning a uniform again.

Blue Bonnets Awarded Dates

Drew Proposes Empire-Wide Aviation Plan

OTTAWA, May 11.—(CP)—Organization of an all-British commercial air transport system, with Canada as "the logical centre of Empire air activity," was urged yesterday by Lt.-Col. George A. Drew, Ontario Progressive Conservative leader.

In an address prepared for delivery to a joint meeting of Ottawa service clubs, Col. Drew said Canada's place in post-war aviation could best be assured as part of an Empire system which would have a strong competitive position.

EASILY ORGANIZED

The organization of such a world-girdling corporation would present no difficulty, he said. Each nation within the Empire could retain its own domestic air routes and operation of trans-Canada Air Lines, the Canadian government-owned system, would not be disturbed in any way.

"By the accident of geography Canada is at the crossroads of the most important air routes of the world, and Canada has the opportunity to become one of the greatest carriers by air of passengers and freight, if we recognize the opportunities which lie before us and plan now to take advantage of those opportunities," he said.

New airfields opened for war training purposes, along with those opened before the war, provided Canada with the framework of one of the most complete domestic air systems in the world. From the point of view of trained personnel, Canada had the best position of any country and many persons now in war aviation were performing tasks little different from those required in civil aviation.

WORK TOGETHER

"Working together we (Canada and the other British Nations) can maintain the greatest air routes in the world. The British nations in this field are complementary, not competitive. And they possess bases which will permit round-the-world flying, landing only on British territory."

"If we attempt to work alone we will sink to relative unimportance as a carrier of international air commerce. That is our choice; to become the centre of a great world-girdling British commercial system or to sink back into the unimportant role of a satellite air power using aircraft, instruments and supplies made in some other country," he added.

"Because the civil and military aspects of this problem are inseparable, it is not too much to say that upon our decision may rest the future of the empire. The time for decision is now. When peace comes it will in all probability be too late," he warned.

New Head U.S. Air Force Here Takes Up Post

has visited the island area where U.S. and Canadian airmen are battling weather and Japs every day under the worst aviation conditions in the entire world.

"Flying in the Aleutians is a tough job, even without a war," said Col. Gaffney.

"The weather in the Aleutians is perpetually bad; the only variation being worse weather," he explained.

For three years the U.S. Army Air Force has conducted tests at Ladd Field that are proving their worth now, Col. Gaffney and others of his staff observed.

Although he has visited Canada several times this is the first Canadian post for Col. Gaffney, who stands about six feet and looks every inch a fighting man. He is a qualified senior pilot.

Last summer he visited Africa, where the Allied air forces have dealt the armies of Field Marshal Rommel a mortal blow, in conjunction with the hard-hitting armored forces and infantry.

He admitted that summer in Africa and winter in Alaska is probably not just the happiest of choices but in war no one can choose his "vacation" spots.

While in Alaska, Col. Gaffney mingled many times with officers and men of the R.C.A.F., who are jointly defending the northwestern extremity of the continent.

COMRADESHIP EXCELLENT

"Our work and association generally with Canadians has always been thoroughly satisfactory. There is an excellent spirit of comradeship between the men of the two fighting forces," said Col. Gaffney.

"That holds good, of course, to all of the associations between the Americans and Canadians," he added warmly.

He said he was looking forward to forming more friendships with Canadians during his stay in Edmonton.

Col. Gaffney was born in Methune, Mass., on February 18, 1894. He took his early schooling in Massachusetts.

In 1915 he enlisted in the U.S. army in the signals branch of the infantry.

He transferred to the Air Corps in 1918 and was very disappointed in not getting to France.

TRAINED IN TEXAS

His primary air force training was at Parkview, Texas. Then later came more training at Kelly Field, Texas and a commission. He then specialized in pursuit aviation and went in for bombardment work, later attending an air school near San Francisco in this branch of military aviation.

He saw duty in Texas where he was instructor for a time, then there was a period of service in Panama from 1921 to 1925. Other posts followed at various U.S. air fields. In 1935 he was in command of the air force post at Leavenworth, Kansas.

Although he had been in Alaska for short periods it was not until 1939 that he was placed in charge of experimental work at Ladd Field, Alaska.

Returning again briefly to the subject of the Aleutians, Col. Gaffney remarked:

"The weather is universally bad, with rain, hail, ice, sleet and wind the daily fare. The rain has a peculiarity all of its own in the Aleutians. It falls in a horizontal slant," he added.

"GOD WIND SOCK"

"Another officer said that attempts had been made to use a 500-pound bomb for a wind sock, but had to be given up because the bomb "blew around so"

In the north Col. Gaffney had visits from Sir Hubert Wilkins, British scientist, who is studying a world weather forecasting plan, and Lt.-Col. A. C. McKinley, former South Pole explorer, who is also studying weather in the far north.

Col. Gaffney is married. His wife lives at present in Milwaukee and his only son, Dale Gaffney, 19, is in the U.S. Army Air Force training as a cadet.

Courtesy calls were paid Col. Gaffney Monday afternoon by several R.C.A.F. officers, including Wing Commander J. A. "Packy" McFarlane, officer commanding the R.C.A.F. Northwest Staging Route.

Col. Gaffney was well acquainted with his predecessor, Col. Mosley.

See 'Contentious' Debt Legislation

OTTAWA, May 11.—(CP)—The Evening Citizen said yesterday that "whatever the nature" of the impending legislation to amend the farmers' creditors arrangement act, it is likely to be highly contentious."

"Western members are inclined to demand that the provisions be made more elastic on the ground that the greater the financial burdens of the farmers, the greater will be the incentive to production.

"The more production there is, it is argued, the greater will be its utility in the war and the better will be the position of the farmers to pay their debts on whatever basis is arranged.

"The mortgage, loan and insurance companies, on the other hand, are very active in the argument that, already, the farmers are in a good position to meet their debts, figures being given of production prices, purchasing power and the favorable economy generally on the farms.

"It is urged that this is a good time for debts being liquidated and a guarantee of farm credit being maintained.

Plan to Call Married Men Aged 26 to 30

OTTAWA, May 11—(CP)—The Ottawa Journal said yesterday in a newspage story that registration cards of married men between the ages of 26 and 30 have been sent to mobilization boards, preparatory to their call-up for military service.

"This new class, like the others which have preceded it, would be called up by proclamation, but when this could be expected Mr. MacNamara (Arthur MacNamara, director of National Selective Service) declined to say.

DATE UNCERTAIN

"When the call will be sent out, he declared, "depends entirely upon the circumstances.

"We are preparing for it anyway.

"The registration cards of the eligible men have been gathered together and sent to the mobilization boards.

"When it becomes necessary to call up the married men in that older age group we will be in readiness to do it.

"I cannot go further than that,' "Previously the assembling of registration cards of any one age-class has been a forerunner of a new draft call."

. . . The district mobilization board expected the new age group of married men would be called "before midsummer."

Call-up regulations at present apply to single men and childless widowers from 19 to 40 and married men and widowers with children from 19 to 25 years.

Coal Storage by City Urged to Avert Winter Shortage

Civic Employees' Requests For Salary Increases May Go to Arbitration Board

Possibility of wage increase requests from civic unions being submitted to an arbitration board was suggested by City Commissioner R. J. Gibb in city council Monday night while aldermen were discussing a communication from the Police Association intimating there was a deadlock between the association and the city commissioners on 1943 wage requests.

He said that in wage negotiations with other civic unions it had been implied that any general increase given to one department would result in requests for similar treatment from other civic unions.

Commissioner Gibb asked council to defer dealing with the police salary question until the Federation of Civic Employees had concluded negotiations with the commissioners.

MOTION PASSED

Alderman James H. Ogilvie, moving that the Police Association communication be referred to the finance committee, said that each union bargained individually on wage matters. His motion to refer was passed.

Const. Alex. Keating, president of the Police Association, submitted that first class constables on the Edmonton police force received $12.35 less monthly than was paid a similar grade in Winnipeg; in Vancouver the pay was $18.35 higher than in this city; in Regina the first class constable's wage was $8.35 higher monthly, in Calgary $1.35 and in Saskatoon $2.35 higher on a monthly basis.

Detectives in Vancouver were paid $18.35 monthly more than in Edmonton, in Winnipeg, $16.35, and on the Regina force $15.95. Detectives-sergeants received $22 more monthly on the Vancouver force than was paid to that rank on the city's force, and at Winnipeg the monthly pay was $17 higher than paid here.

PENSION REJECTED

He said that the extra pension unit offer by the commissioners was not acceptable to the members of the association, and added that the men needed the extra money now to meet the marked increase in living costs.

Ald. Ogilvie was of the opinion this matter could be dealt with more efficiently by a small body like the finance committee than it could be by council as a whole. He said representations could be made by the police association to the committee, and definite recommendations should go to that committee from the commission board.

The request from the Edmonton Street Railwaymen's Association for recognition as the bargaining agency" over the city railway motormen was referred to the bylaws committee for consideration in a vote taken on Friday last the Association polled 118 votes against 21 cast in favor of the Electric Employees' Local No. 569.

Ring Lost 7 Years Restored to Owner

Mrs. L. Nicholson, wife of Const. Leslie Nicholson, Edmonton detachment, R.C.M.P., believes she was born lucky. She has a right to think that, too, especially since getting back a diamond ring that slipped from her finger back at their farm in Morse, Sask., in 1936.

One-time farmers, they moved to Edmonton a year after Mr. Nicholson, on joining the force, had rented the farm. But though they made more than one trip back, they never found any trace of the missing sparkler.

Until just the other day. A letter came, advising the Nicholsons that the enclosed ring had been picked up near the chicken-house.

Seven years of weathering had not harmed the sparkler nor dimmed the sparkle; it was still as good as new.

Mrs. Nicholson is having the ring made to fit her finger. The next time it might not come back.

Troops' Morale Overseas Said To Be "Superb"

The Canadian forces stationed in the British Isles are superb both as to morale and eager anticipation to get into the fight and finish the job, Maj. John Steele, Salvation Army Auxiliary Service officer stated Tuesday on his arrival here after spending two and a half years overseas.

He returned to Canada in an exchange of officers, and has been appointed supervisor of war services in Canada.

The men overseas naturally are anxious to get busy and fight. He had visited camps of soldiers of many nationalities in England and had not found better morale than that of the Canadians.

Outlining the work being done by the war services overseas, he said that every type of service to entertain the men and carry on a direct link with their homeland was being carried out.

Mobile and stationary canteen service, recreational huts, cinemas, concerts, educational facilities, as well as the donation of sports and recreational equipment are being provided for the men.

SPECIAL EFFORT

Special effort to provide such services to men stationed in isolated posts is made by the services, he explained. These men were not forgotten, and every possible means of providing them with such things as reading matter, recreational facilities and many other things are used. Similar service also is rendered to seamen on Canadian ships calling at British ports.

Speaking of the British Salvation Army, Maj. Steele said that more than 2,000 of its buildings had been demolished by air raids. Included in these was the London headquarters.

Officials were doing nothing to replace these buildings for the present as they wish to concentrate entirely on the work among the troops.

BAD AIR RAIDS

While in England Maj. Steele experienced some of the worst air raids that occurred and was in London at the time of the big fire blitz. The bravery displayed by the British people during that time was amazing, said Maj. Steele, who stated that at no time did they waver in their rugged and indomitable spirit.

The defences in Great Britain were tremendous now. There was no comparison with the defences now in operation and those in 1940 when the aerial warfare over Britain first began.

AMPLE CHANCE

Part of his time overseas was spent servicing an R.C.A.F. bomber squadron on the east coast and there he had ample opportunity to view at first hand the active operations over France and Germany, Maj. Steele said.

He was glad to be back in Canada, he expressed regret that he had been unable to stay overseas and "to have been in at the finish."

Greater Volume Supplies Here Is Well Justified

Increased population in Edmonton and district, and in consequence a heavy increase in buying, certainly justifies the city's increased supplies of merchandise, officials of the jewelry division of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board said on arrival here Tuesday.

In the party are G. Dinsmore, Toronto, deputy administrator for the jewelry division; Robert E. Day, Toronto, president, Bulova Watch Ltd., who is director of the watch division, and R. H. Amell, Toronto, director of gold goods.

They are here in the course of a western survey of supply and demand conditions.

Spokesman for the party, Mr. Dinsmore said that "it was not realized prior to their visit here that there had been such a big increase in population." The buying power here, in consequence of population increase, had advanced 50 per cent.

"Edmonton and district," he said, "are entitled to a greater quota of merchandise. Whether it can be supplied is another question.

INCREASE ABSORBED

He said that although prices from the manufacturers for watches and other jewelry had been increased this increase had been absorbed by the wholesalers and retailer. In no instance has any increase in price been passed on to the consumer.

Chief problem of the jewelry trade will be metal supplies for the manufacture of silverware, costume jewelry, dresser sets, and other articles. No metal has been made available by the government for approximately one year, and unless merchants conserve their stocks these articles will be sold out by the end of this year, Mr. Dinsmore stated.

LIMITED AMOUNTS

He said that limited amounts of metal was being made available for the manufacture of dinnerware. This would be distributed to the services canteens, hotel and restaurant trade, institutions, and the balance, after these requirements had been filled, would be made available to the general public.

AMPLE SUPPLY

"There is an ample supply of gold products, but the manpower situation may cause shortages in this division of the trade," he said.

He intimated that the diamond situation in Canada was serious because of the higher prices being paid in the United States. All production at present was flowing in the United States market, he added.

The party will remain here throughout Tuesday and will leave Tuesday evening for Saskatoon.

Weather in South Makes North 'Good'

Who says the weather's awful?

While Edmontonians have been busy the last two weeks, digging Victory Gardens, planting seeds, golfing, painting and doing the hundred and one sundry jobs around the house demanded by spring, guess what Albertans 200 miles to the south have been doing last week-end?

Not picking green peas out of the garden—and not going picnicking. They've been shovelling snow off their front walks!

A government official, just back from a trip to the foothills cities, reports a foot of snow fell there yesterday. More, he said, was falling there this morning.

Maybe, when it's a bit warmer here, and people are caught up on their garden planting, someone will take a trip down to the foothills by train, to do a bit of skiing, or maybe skating!

City Council Votes $2,700 For ARP Work

City Council Monday night voted $2,700 to continue Air Raid Precautions work in the city through 1943. This action was taken following a short debate in which aldermen were emphatic that the work should be continued, and deplored the fact that Ottawa authorities declined to give financial assistance to the work.

Ald. Sidney Parsons was of the opinion that air raid precautions work and organization should be continued until the Japanese had been "licked in the Pacific." He said to discontinue this work now would be a mistake, and asked the commissioners if they considered the $2,700 appropriation sufficient for the work.

OTTAWA'S ATTITUDE

Ald. F. J. Mitchell asked the commissioners if they had received any replies from the Department of National Defence or other departments at Ottawa following representations made for assistance following the declaration here by Maj-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C., that "the threat of Japanese attack on this continent is becoming increasingly grave."

Mayor John W. Fry replied that letters and telegrams sent to Ottawa on this subject had not been replied to.

Ald. H. D. Ainlay asked if Capt. A. J. Huff, chief air raid warden, had given consideration to the utilizing of high school boys in the work. He expressed the opinion that these young lads would give better service than some of the old men who were now performing air raid warden duties.

Answering Ald. Guy Patterson, K.C. Capt. Huff stated that approximately 1,500 persons had been training in air raid precautions work in the city, and that 5,000 could now be mobilized for an air raid alert if necessary.

Ald. Sidney Bowcott moved that the appropriation of $2,700 be passed.

INCREASE LICENSE FEE

Recommendation of the council's bylaws committee that the license fee for "juke boxes" be $5 was rejected by the council and a motion from Ald. Ogilvie setting the license fee at $10 was passed. Ald. Sidney Bowcott stated that his vote be recorded as against the increase in license fee. Ald. Patterson told council he was refraining from voting on the question as he is not in a legal capacity for an owner of some "juke boxes."

Thefts From Cars Reported Here

Theft of one car, removal of car parts and personal belongings from parked vehicles, together with the attempted theft of an auto by crossing the ignition wires, have been reported to city police it was announced Tuesday.

William Ferinuik, 11326 84 street, had his car taken from 93 street and 118 avenue, sometime between 9:30 p.m. and 11 p.m. Saturday. It is a 1929 model, painted blue, with cracked rear window and a spotlight on the front bumper. It carried license No. 57970.

Theft of parts from two trucks which were in a boxcar on C.N.R. tracks west of 116 street, were reported by Inspector J. Gibb, of the C.N.R. The vehicles were consigned to the U.S. Engineers, Edmonton. Missing from one truck is a carburetor, volt regulator, two front wheels with tires and hubcaps. Taken from a light delivery truck were two front wheels, with tires and hubcaps.

Charles McMaster of Manola, reported that a tarpaulin had been taken from his truck which was parked near the Leland service station. A rear view mirror was also appeared he said. Time of the disappearance was between 11 p.m. Monday and 8 a.m. Tuesday. John Nidor, 10006 105A avenue, stated an overcoat had been removed from his car which was parked on 82 avenue near 105 street about 9 p.m. Sunday.

W. C. Bradburn, 12312 104 avenue reported an attempt had been made to steal his car on Saturday by crossing the ignition wires. The car was parked outside his residence at the time. The contents of the dashboard compartment, which had been ransacked, were handed to the city finger-print department.

LONDON. — (CP) — A bracelet with a lock of Napoleon's hair, a cap worn by Louis XVI just before his execution and a necklace worn by Marie Antoinette in the Bastille will be auctioned soon in Paris, Paris radio said.

Serious Situation Seen Unless Steps are Taken To Increase Production

First step to meet a threatened coal shortage in Edmonton was taken Monday night at city council by Ald. F. J. Mitchell, who gave notice of motion seeking endorsation of a plan to have coal mined in city mines stored for winter consumption.

His motion reads: That the city commissioners be instructed to arrange in so far as it is possible to have coal stored by the power house equipment, or in any storage available in the city, as fast as coal can be produced by mines in and about the city. The handling of such coal storage to be at cost for dealers. The motion will be discussed at the next regular meeting of council.

Mayor John W. Fry intimated to council that a very serious coal shortage may develop in the city unless steps are taken to increase production.

PROBLEM FOR PARLEY

It was suggested by aldermen that this was a fitting matter to be brought to the attention of the Conference of Mayors and Municipalities to be held at Ottawa, May 25 to 28 inclusive, as the solution, in their opinion, rested with the release from the armed forces of miners.

Mayor Fry and Ald. Mitchell were delegated by council to attend this conference.

Council passed two resolutions to be submitted to this meeting.

Sponsored by Ald. Mitchell council passed the following without comment: "That the delegates to the convention of Mayors and Municipalities at Ottawa be instructed to support recom-

Widows Are Useful Section of Citizens

Popular Conception of Widows Is That They Are Poor Forlorn Creatures, But Really They Are Entertaining and Interesting

I often think that widows are the least understood and most maligned class of people in the world. The popular conception of the widow is a poor, forlorn, drab creature who is always sniffing and telling a hard luck story, and who wears a dingy black dress that hikes up in the front and down in the back and a battered hat that saw its best days in the Theodore Roosevelt administration.

Or else she is a lacrimose individual whose early topic of conversation is her dear, departed husband who did not believe in insurance, and who grafts her living by visiting her unwilling friends and relatives, and who is about as depressing to have around as a rainy day.

Or else she is supposed to be a predatory lady who is on the prowl, seeking whom she may devour and with an especial yen for other women's husbands. She is believed to be possessed of occult powers of fascination that no man can resist, and that when she sets her hypnotic eye on an eligible male he had just as well sign on the dotted line on a marriage license and let himself be led to the altar.

GRASS WIDOWS

Or else, if she is a grass widow instead of a sod one, she figures in the popular imagination as a ruthless wrecker of homes and a pitiless fiend who rob children of their fathers. Or else a gold digger who wangles diamond bracelets out of artless old bachelors and widowers, and who is generally suspected of being no better than she should be.

And, no matter how old the widow is, or how crippled up with rheumatism she is, nor how unhappy her first marriage may have been, nor how rich nor how poor she may be, now how absorbed she may be in doing good works, she is believed to be just crazy to marry again. Indeed, so sold are widow's friends on the idea that her chief desire in life is for another husband that they turn match-makers and try to arrange alliances, as they used to say in the Victorian days, between her and all the leftover men of their acquaintances.

Now how these myths about the widow originated, no one knows.

But that they are baseless we all know, if we give any real thought to the subject, for the widow is even as you and I who have our husbands still alive, and kicking at most of the things we do. They differ as every woman differs from her sister and conform to no set pattern of either virtures or vices.

HANDLE MEN

The slightest investigation of the legends about widows shows how little foundation they have to rest upon. Take the one, for instance, about widows being sirens who can lure any man into matrimony. If they do it is not because of some conjure they carry in their compacts. It is experience. It is technique. It is because, having had a husband, they know how to handle the creatures.

The man who marries a widow knows that she has learned how to cook, experimenting on the deceased, and that he ill not have his digestion ruined and his stomach upset by his bride's housekeeping. He knows that the widow has cut her teeth on her first wedding cake and that she won't expect too much of marriage or a more husband. In a word, that marrying a widow is like getting a trained stenographer instead of one you have to break in.

And consider how absurd is the belief that every widow's prayer is "Lord, send me a husband," when there is no woman, no matter how old an unattractive she is, who doesn't have dozen of proposals from impecunious man who would like to hang up their hats in her hall and stretch their feet under her table, if so be her first husband left her a comfortable home and a nice little wad of insurance money.

USEFUL CITIZENS

Nor are all widows poor, or lonesome, or bored, or forlorn in these days. If they need money, those who have backbones and brains roll up their sleeves and go to work and support themselves and their children, if they have any. If they do not need to work, they travel and study and run charities. They are not only among the most useful citizens we have, but are among the most entertaining and interesting people we meet.

That there are lazy women ho make a graft of widowhood rather than work; that there are vain old widows who buy themselves boy husbands; that there are credulous widows who let glib talkers sell them Blue Sky, no one will deny. But, for the most part, widows are among the salt of the earth and Heaven knows what we would do without them.

Even the Bible commends them to our care and tells us to console them and wipe away the tears from their eyes. But it is a hazardous thing for an old bachelor or widower to do unless he is thinking of marrying and settling down.

The world championship Masters individual tournament is a grueling contest of five sessions. To finish in the runner-up position is very disappointing, of course, because one can see so many places where a little different action could have won the tournament. But Charles J. Solomon of Philadelphia, this year's runner-up did very well for himself on the hand shown today.

North: ♠ K Q 9 4 ♥ A J ♦ 9 6 5 3 ♣ 10 7 3

Mrs. Golder (West): ♠ A 10 8 7 6 ♥ 5 ♦ J 7 4 ♣ Q J 8 6

Solomon (East): ♠ 5 3 2 ♥ 10 8 6 2 ♦ A K Q 10 8 2 ♣ None

South (Dealer): ♠ J ♥ K Q 9 7 4 3 ♦ None ♣ A K 9 5 4 2

Duplicate—N. and S. vul.

| South | West | North | East |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1 ♥ | Pass | 1 ♠ | 4 ♦ |
| 5 ♣ | Pass | 5 ♥ | 6 ♣ |
| 6 ♥ | Pass | Pass | Double |

Opening—♣ Q. 11

When Solomon played this hand, he happened to be paired with Mrs. Benjamin M. Golder, with whom he won many championships. Sitting East, Solomon bid four diamonds in the hope of interfering with North and South. When North bid five hearts, however, he realized that North-South were going to a slam. His six-club bid was a demand that the club suit be opened when the slam contract was reached.

As it happened, the slam could not be made, but to be certain of it, Mrs. Golder opened the queen of clubs, a suit-directing play, so that when Solomon ruffed, a spade return was indicated. Mrs. Golder won and led another club, giving Solomon a second ruff.

What To Do

When making a telephone call from a friend's house, how do I pay her for the call?

Answer: First you ask permission of your friend to use her telephone. They you should find out if the call you are about to make is a toll charge. If it is, ask the operator to give you the charges on the call when you have finished and pay your friend for the call immediately.

If you must make a long distance call from a friend's home, be sure to add the federal tax charge to the toll charge the operator gives you because this is quite an item on an expensive call.

It is not impossible to find fresh water in the ocean. In the Persian Gulf there is a spot where fresh water springs pour into the ocean from the bottom somewhere, and the people go there to get their drinking and cooking water, as good water is scarce on the shore. Men make a living getting the water for the inhabitants of the shore. They go down to the bottom, weighted with stones and take with them empty water skins. When they reach the bottom these divers open the inverted bags directly over the springs and fill them in a few seconds. They tie the bags shut to keep out the sea water and are pulled to the surface by helpers.

Today buy one pound of hamburger. Be sure you get good hamburger, meeting government standards. It must be made of ground or chopped beef containing not more than 28 per cent fat; must be made from skeletal meat from beef carcass, excluding head meat, must be strictly fresh and contain no cereal or other ingredients except seasoning.

Check carefully. Hamburger is not just a lot of any old meat ground up. It must be entirely beef. One pound for four persons is extended in the recipe for green peppers stuffed with vegetables, molasses and fat. But in order to insure adequate protein in the dinner, serve this unusually good recipe for bran muffins. The wholewheat flour, bran, sour milk, egg and nut meats are all sources of protein.

BAKED STUFFED PEPPERS

Six large green peppers, 1 pound hamburger, 4 cups bread crumbs, 3 tablespoons minced onion, 1 cup stewed tomatoes minced onion, 1 cup stewed tomatoes, ¼ cup molasses, 2 tablespoons melted fat, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper.

Remove seeds and membranes of peppers adn parboil in salted water 10 minutes. Combine all remaining ingredients in order given. Stuff peppers with mixture and bake in a moderate oven (350d F.) for 40 to 45 minutes. Baste occasionally. Serve with tomato sauce.

BRAN MUFFINS
(18 muffins)

Two cups wholewheat flour, 1½ cups bran, 2 tablespoons sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1¼ teaspoons soda, 2 cups sour milk, 1 beaten egg, ½ cup pure molasses, 2 tablespoons melted fat, ¾ cup nut meats, ¼ cup raisins.

McCoy Health Service

By dyspepsia is meant the indigestion caused by the loss of the normal ability to digest food in comfort. On account of the emotional disturbances which indigestion so often induces, the patient becomes easily irritated, depressed and anxious. A confirmed dyspeptic is a confirmed crank because his digestive juices make him one. If he has an upset stomach very often, his face takes on a drawn appearance and his hollow cheeks and dull skin proclaim that he is badly nourished.

But let the same patient get the digestion adjusted so that he is agreeing with his food and in addition to taking on a well-fed, healthy appearance, he also becomes normally cheerful.

In an amusing article which I once read the organs of digestion were referred to as the "organs of indigestion." That is a clever title and many of those who are conscious of digestive derangements come to believe that their digestive apparatus is busy mainly with the task of producing the symptoms of indigestion.

Wrong habits of eating are responsible for most of the digestive disorders. Some of the common causes of digestive difficulty are: Eating when tired or worried, eating too late a quantity of food, eating foods which are difficult to digest, eating too rapidly, not chewing food sufficiently, and the use of incorrect food combinations.

An additional cause capable of producing indigestion in those of a highly-strung type is nervous tension. Newspaper men, surgeons, actors and others leading an exacting life in which nerve strain is continuous, often find that they must find some way of reducing nervous tension before the digestive organs will behave.

The patient with stomach trouble usually notes one or more of the following symptoms: Excessive gas, belching, rapid beating of the heart, or a feeling of fullness or pressure within the stomach. Upon pressing over the top of the stomach with the fingers, he elicits a feeling of tenderness and the parts seem stretched or bloated. Actual pain similar to colic is usually absent but the general soreness or tenderness in the pit of the stomach is marked.

With chronic digestive difficulty the tongue is likely to be coated, there may be some unpleasant odor of the breath, and alsa a bad taste in the mouth. The patient may complain of a burning or gnawing feeling in the stomach which is especially strong when he misses a meal. The appetite is frequently poor and nausea may occur.

In an effort to use only those foods which he is sure will agree with him, the patient usually sharply curtails the diet and possibly omits many wholesome foods. Partly because of this restricted selection of food and partly because of poor assimilation, he finds it difficult to gain weight and may be steadily losing weight. As a general rule he is troubled with constipation.

I do not know of a single help which will be more important to the patient with stomach trouble than right diet. His difficulties have come upon him because he has been eating incorrectly and it is only when he is willing to change his dietic habits that he finally finds his feet on the road to recovery.

All questions regarding health and diet will be answered. Large stamped, self-addressed envelope must be enclosed. Write on one side of paper only. Letters must not exceed 150 words. Address McCoy Health Service, The McCoy Building, 1151 West 6th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

The mother of several children, if she is willing to learn, amasses a wealth of experience of benefit to herself and others. It is only the parent who knows her way is best and cannot be persuaded otherwise whose experiences fail to be rich and rewarding ones.

Mrs. R. F. is not one of these, she has been both living and learning.

"Out of my four children we had only one cry-baby," she writes. "He was that before he left the hospital. But his difficulty was vomiting and I am sure now that lack of food caused it.

"Later he got so spoiled he would not let me out of his sight. I helped him forget to cry for me by sending him off with the older children for hours at a time. He got over it.

"I like it that you don't discourage mothers from playing with and loving their babies. As soon as my babies began to wake up and cry to be fed I always went to them, changed them and played with them, holding their hands, singing to them. They came to look for it. Wherever I was, if I treated them this way and then fed them, they would eat and sleep as at home.

"My babies lost most of any crossness they had when I gave them complementary feedings. I think almost all colic is just hunger. I found that taking their bottles away early was better than weaning them late. My first two I weaned late, the last two early and the last were much better eaters.

"I don't believe in making a child eat when he isn't hungry. Even if there were signs of illness I still never urged them to eat. My Dad always made us clean our plates no matter what had been put on them. To this day we all have vilent dislikes toward some foods.

"He also thinks it is a sin to have a meal without bread. I don't force my children to eat bread and they seem to like more things than if I forced them.

"Mothers ought not to run for the laxative bottle all the time. My doctor told me not to us this as a cure-all for everything wrong with a child. Our four children don't average two laxatives a year.

"My four-year-old is left-handed. He learned to use the right when the left had an injury. Now he uses both. Thre isn't a teacher living who will it him use the left. What shall I do?"

All of this is good, home-spun, common sense, without which any parent is lost. To be able to see the relation between what you do and how the child acts is the test if intelligence. By all means insist that the boy use his preferential hand for any work which demands skill. Teachers are not so inflexible, I believe, as to make an issue of this.

"How the Child Develops" may be had by sending a 4-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Myrtle Meyer Eldred in care of this newspaper.

Minute Make-Ups

For smooth perfection use face powder cleverly. Blend your face powder on the throat, then smooth it upward, se a bit of fresh cotton or a clean soft puff. Powder generously, then brush off the excess with a folded tissue or a powder brush. Accent lips, then brush eyelashes and eyebrows 'till they shine. This extra brushing results in smooth perfection!

My Day

BY ELEANOR ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON—Yesterday morning we had the great pleasure of welcoming Madame Chiang Kai-shek here again. Her trip across our great country and the speeches she made, have been a very exhausting experience. I hope that during the next few weeks she can really rest and recuperate. She needs to build up her strength before returning to China.

Madame Chiang says she watched all of our countryside out of train windows, and was impressed by the similarity that exists between the Chinese and our own landscape. She has taked with many people individually and has met great crowds.

After an experience such as she has been through, she should need to see only very few people, and they should demand very little effort from her. To an outgoing person like Madame Chiang, it is difficult not to be drained of energy and strength after being with a great many people.

Some of you may remember a mention I made in my column of the heroic attempt of a foreman in the Pursglove, West Virginia, mine disaster. After escaping from a fire in the mine, he returned to try to free some of the other men who were lost and was himself killed. His name was Guy E. Quinn, and I heard today that the Carnegie hero fund commission has awarded him a medal which is to be presented to his widow, who will also be paid monthly death benefits over a period of six years.

This fund was established by Mr. Carnegie in 1904. Since that time, the fund has paid the widows and other dependents of persons who lost their lives in the heroic saying, or attempt to save, the lives of others, the aggregate sum of $3,964,000. In addition, the fund has paid to heroes who performed such acts without losing their own lives, $1,875,000 to be used for educational expenses, the purchase of homes, or other purposes of permanent betterment.

In this particular mine disaster, looking up the case of Mr. Quinn, led to the discoverey that Mr. Bradford Gainer had helped in the attempt to rescue ten other miners with Mr. Quinn, and was fortunate enough to come out alive. He has also been awarded the Bronze Medal and the sum of $500, which he can call upon for some worthy purpose approved by the executive committee of the fund.

I am happy that both these cases gained recognition. I think that we should be careful for the spirit which recognized that deeds of heroism should be acclaimed. I am sure that every time a man or his dependents receive such recognition, it is of value to the country.

Woman Worker Finds Romance

By DENISE DALTROFF

LONDON, May 11. — (CP) — In wartime Britain women do everything from shipbuilding to street sweeping. As you watch them sometimes at laborious, crude work, you wonder how they feel about it.

In Soho, peacetime home of quaint foreign restaurants and European shops, plump Florence Sharp was discovered plying her trade as street sweeper. She was induced to go before the microphone and tell how it felt to be a woman working at what one time was essentially a man's business. In her narrative she told how she "liked road sweeping better than anything else" she ever had done before her husband was killed in a pub during an air raid.

It also developed within her a homey philosophy. She notices things about people and life that she had never realized before. "You see life on this job," she said thoughtfully. "You really do. You see how people are happy and you see how they are sad and miserable. You see everything that's going on in life."

"Take the old ladies. They're all very nice to us, although I must say they are a bit queer sometimes. I had one old lady come up this morning and she just stood there and roared with laughter. I said 'What's the matter with you?' She just stood there and laughed. I don't know what there was to laugh at, I'm sure."

SEES VARIED SIDES

"Sometimes people come up to us and say 'what lovely work you do. We're proud of you' and pat you on the back. Then they say 'won't you have a drink?' Lots of people are very rude . . ." said Florence.

"We watch different people every day. We watch the funny side of them all right. You get every nationality in the world in Soho. We see fights and rows and people get locked up. It's very interesting round there really, especially when the pubs turn out. And all the time you feel you're doing something for your country. You feel you're helping in some way."

And if you think romance disappears in the street-sweeping business, listen to what Florence says about her private life:

"Lots of fellows who have met me on my beat want to marry me. . . . I could have been married hundreds of times. . . . But I've lost interest in men since I lost my husband. . . ."

WEEKLY WARTIME NUTRITION HINTS

by Martha Logan

Tongue Rolls Florentine

A real party dish which is delicious, thrifty and nutritionally O.K.

This week I have a real party recipe for you, which is at the same time thrifty and tops for nutrition. For 4 people, you need 8 slices of boiled tongue (about ½ lb.), 1 lb. spinach, 1 cup top milk, butter, salt, pepper, flour and horseradish.

The tongue slices should be ⅛ of an inch thick and unbroken. Carefully wash spinach. Remove stems and cook in just the water that adheres to the leaves. Cook only till the leaves wilt. Drain well. Chop fine. Add 1 tablespoon melted butter or fine flavoured dripping, season. Place a spoonful of spinach on each slice of tongue. Roll and fasten with a wooden pick. Place in greased casserole.

Combine 1 tablespoon flour and 4 tablespoons horseradish with milk and pour over tongue. Cover. Cook in a moderately hot (400°) oven for 20 minutes.

You can serve these delicious tongue rolls directly from the casserole or on a platter with a border of snowy mashed potatoes, garnished with lightly fried parsely.

Tongue and spinach are both high in the list of protective foods and cooked this way they tempt the most difficult appetite. Of course, in addition to this serving of meat, potatoes and one leafy green vegetable—we need, in the same day, another (preferably raw) . . . ½ pint of milk for adults, more than one pint for children . . . tomatoes or citrus fruit or their juices and one other fruit with a whole grain cereal and four to six slices of Canada Approved bread. These foods can easily be provided at other meals, as can the minimum of three or four eggs a week recommended by Nutrition Services.

Bees Require Large Supply Of Good Food

If Alberta bee-keepers wish to garner a bumper crop of honey this year, they must make sure their bees are well fed now, Hon. W. G. leMaistre, provincial apiarist, stated Tuesday.

"We are disappointed the weather is so bad," Mr. leMaistre said. "The prolonged chilly spell has retarded growth, and it means the bee-keepers require more sugar to feed the bees."

Sugar for beekeepers is provided by the Dominion sugar administration, and the small amount, usually ten pounds per colony, is always well expended, as the bees turn in many times more honey than sugar that is used to feed them in spring.

NOT THE CASE

Many keepers think that the bees are now looking after themselves, but this is not the case, Mr. leMaistre warns. They are not looking after themselves, and need feeding. Give them plenty of sugar and syrup.

The prolonged cold will not affect the honey crop this year, he adds. Provided the bees are being fed properly, there is no need to assume there will be a light crop this year. Usually by this time, clover is supplying the bees with food. Gone while ii and other flowering is late, when the flowering comes along it will provide an ample harvest for strong hives.

Victory Loan Proves Success In Rural Areas

Nine of Northern Alberta's rural divisions have exceeded the quota set for them in the Fourth Victory Loan, and are pressing forward to new, but undisclosed objectives. Five have passed the 90 per cent mark, with seven others over the 80 per cent milestone, it was announced Tuesday by loan headquarters here.

Eleven have achieved more than 70 per cent of their quotas, and of fields are reported that all 46 divisions will achieve their objectives, with many of them exceeding them by substantial margins.

The Alix district reports 140.6 of its quota of $33,500, still leads in Northern Alberta, with the Edgerton-Chauvin district second with 141.3 per cent of its $35,000 quota in hand. Waskatenau-Radway is in third place, and Macdonald-Dewberry in fourth position.

Rural sales up to Monday night in the Fourth Victory Loan amounted to $2,803,350, compared with $1,343,900 in the Third Loan. The number of subscribers to the present loan is 13,963, and in the Third Victory Loan 7,767.

OVER QUOTA

Advice was received early Tuesday morning that Vermilion had gone over its quota through sales amounting to $50,000 Saturday. This is the first district in the $100,000 quota class to exceed its objective.

Inquest Thursday

Coroner's inquest into the death of Frank Kostiw, four and one half year old son of Frank Kostiw of 10030 62 street, will be held in the city police station at 2:30 p.m. Thursday. Dr. A. E. Braithwaite, chief provincial coroner, announced Tuesday. Members of the jury are David Duncan, foreman; Andrew Lazaseick, John Hay, W. Munroe, R. J. Talbot and Francis Taylor.

Before The Magistrate

Wilfred B. Hamelin was sentenced to three months with hard labor on a charge of theft, 15 months with hard labor on a charge of housebreaking, and was fined $20 and costs imposed, or, as an alternative, 30 days imprisonment, for intoxication, when he appeared before Magistrate A. I. Millar, K.C., in police court Tuesday morning. The first two sentences run concurrently, the last consecutively. Restitution of stolen goods and confiscation of liquor found upon him at the time of his arrest, was ordered.

Police evidence told of Hamelin being put out of a city place of business about 3 a.m. on April 21, to which place he had returned later. He had entered allegedly a local bakery, from which he took a watch belonging to one of the employees.

Mr. Millar referred to the latter's record which showed a breach of the Indian Act in May, 1942, a similar offence at High River, with theft, in February, 1942. At Kelowna, B.C., in July, 1941, he had been convicted of theft, while in 1938 he was convicted on charges of intoxication, and being an alien, at Bellingham, Wash.

The accused reminded the magistrate that he had been waiting 23 days for this trial. Mr. Millar said he was taking that into consideration.

Norman Porter, Sherman Mueller, Donald Horatio Barr and Bruce Mountney crowded into the dock at one time to hear the charge of operating a car without the owner's consent. Because of further investigations, the charge against Barr was laid May 18. The four were arrested at Hoobema, where the stolen car was recovered.

Austerity meals have been introduced in Kenya's and Tanganyika's hotels, restaurants and clubs.

Overwhelming Majority Canadians Are Agreed on Desired Post-War Results

The overwhelming majority of Canadians are agreed on the results they want in post-war Canada, and they are agreed that authorities should be making a start now to establish that new democracy, but they are hopelessly divided over the details of methods to be followed, Hon. E. C. Manning, provincial secretary, said in an address Monday night. Mr. Manning spoke in place of Premier William Aberhart, who is ill at the Pacific Coast.

"Actually the people, as the supreme constitutional authority under our democratic system should not be concerned with methods," declared Mr. Manning. "They should state the results they want from the management of their affairs, and hold those who carry out the actual administration of legislation, of finance, of industry, and of commerce, responsible for getting those results. If they fail to do so, the people should be able to penalize them by changing the administrators."

The people are united in regard to the kind of post-war order they desire Mr Manning continued. If they will organize themselves, elect as their representatives me not integrity under their effective control, demand that they act in clear definite terms, and insist on obedience to their wishes, there is no power in the world which can stop them from getting what they want.

The proper methods to give them the necessary results will very quickly be devised — particularly when the war has proved that almost the impossible can be achieved if we have the will to do it."

Mr. Manning's address, entitled, "The Kind of Post-War Canada the People Want" follows:

I am speaking to you tonight in the absence of Premier Aberhart, to whose stirring messages on post-war reconstruction so many of you have listened with intense and justifiable interest. I regard it as a high privilege to discuss with you some further phases of the vitally important questions which confront us as citizens of Canada when we look into the future in these troubled and momentous times. I am convinced that the issues at stake are greater than any of us have yet begun to realize, and I am equally satisfied that never in the whole past when every vestige of public lethargy should have been dispelled and all our people fully awakened both to the seriousness and to the magnitude of the issues which are before us. And this because the people of Canada for any indifference that may yet remain at this late date. It is not their fault if they have not been fully informed of the grim facts. As the facts are put before them, and the whole picture begins to take form before their eyes, there is no question as to what their reaction will be. Canadians have never been slow to act, once a clear cut issue is before them.

LOCKED IN STRUGGLE

We all know that civilization itself today is locked in a life and death struggle with a ruthless foe. Our very existence is at stake thousands upon thousands of our finest young men are offering their lives, if necessary, that all which we cherish and hold dear shall not perish from the earth. No matter how long and how grim the struggle may be, and we must be prepared for it to be both long and grim, we of the United Nations, all have absolute and justifiable confidence in the ultimate and complete victory of our arms. The valiant men and women of our fighting force are out to finish the job.

But what of the home front? Those who are forced by circumstances to remain at home likewise have a job to do—a fight to win. In addition to seeing to it that the men of the armed forces are adequately supplied with all the necessary munitions and materials of war, ours is the task of laying now, the foundations for the new era that will follow the successful conclusion of hostilities.

Let no man minimize either the importance or the magnitude of that task. Let us never forget that it is possible to win the war, but lose the peace. The experiences of 25 years ago should make every Canadian grimly determined that this time we will not permit a repetition of the conditions that followed the last war. If that is our determination, then the time to act is now. Unpreparedness for peace is even more inexcusable than unpreparedness for war. Today we look back to Munich with a feeling of shame; but what was responsible for the humiliation of Munich? You all know the answer. The Empire was wholly unprepared for war. We were not in readiness to meet its urgent demands and so we had to stall for time.

READY FOR PEACE

Now let me ask you this question: Is Canada today prepared for peace? If by some miracle, victory is nearer than we dare hope, is Canada today in readiness to meet the far reaching requirements of the era of post-war readjustment? Is everything prepared to enable us to care for the valiant men and women of our fighting forces, if they should return to us in the near future? Are we in readiness to give them the economic and social security, and the opportunity to re-establish themselves, which we all agree should, and must be theirs?

You all know the answers to these questions. You must know that to take the preparation to this end has been, and still is, hopelessly inadequate. Mere wishful thinking will never pave the way for a sound and satisfactory post-war economy. In preparation for peace, as in preparation for war, it is action that counts; definite aggressive, united action, on the part of every serious minded, freedom-loving citizen. To that end Premier Aberhart has addressed this series of talks to the people of Canada.

I believe we have reached a point where we can begin to crystallize the main features of the kind of post-war order which Canadians want, and to consider how it is possible to attain it. As a result of this series of addresses, we have received hundreds of letters from all over Canada, and in this way it has been possible to obtain a definite idea of what people are thinking. In fact, that was the purpose in asking you to write.

Now we find from all the hundreds of letters which reach us, that there is very little disagreement among the people of all walks of life, and of all occupations regarding the kind of reconstructed post-war social order that Canadians want. In fact, the measure of agreement on this question is most encouraging, for it means that in spite of all the partisan political wrangling and intrigue, in spite of the apparent disagreement between employers and employees—in fact in spite of all the disrupting influences in our national life, the overwhelming majority of our people are solidly united on the fundamentals of this vital question.

UNITED ON QUESTION

That is to say they are united on the question of the kind of post-war Canada they want—the results they desire. Any disagreement on the whole matter creeps in only when we begin to consider the methods by which these results can be attained. This is to be expected.

During the course of these talks, Premier Aberhart has touched upon one method by which the desired results can be achieved. Some of you have written ideas. But what I want to impress upon you tonight is that if we make the mistake of thinking that we must all come to complete agreement on the details of the best methods by which we can achieve the post-war order, which the overwhelming majority of Canadians want, then we shall never get a reformed economy.

You see when it comes to drafting up detailed methods, in our highly complex modern economic system, it requires specialized technical knowledge—and it is impossible for us all to be experts on every aspect of our national life.

AN ILLUSTRATION

Let me illustrate: Suppose you had a primitive community which wanted a bridge over a river in order to be able to communicate freely and trade with another community right living on the opposite side. Let us suppose that the people of the community were agreed that they wanted a good, strong bridge over which they could drive their cattle, and carry their goods for trade.

Now, suppose that the people attempted to decide what kind of bridge they would have, and how it should be built. There might be three men among them who had a certain amount of practical knowledge and the actual experience in bridge building. The first of these might point out that a timber bridge built on piles would be the most practical method to adopt. The second man might point out that a timber bridge built on piles would never stand up to the flood conditions at certain seasons of the year, and suggest that a suspension bridge would be more suitable. The third man might laugh the idea to scorn, pointing out the weakness of such a bridge to stand up to the heavy storms which sweep the country, and advocate instead a pontoon bridge which would meet the flood conditions and just stand up to the fury of the storms. Suppose the other two would condemn the pontoon bridge as too foolish to consider seriously, and the experts would argue back and forth.

The people, not having the necessary technical knowledge to form a definite opinion, would begin to take sides as the arguments of the experts appealed to them. Very soon they would be divided into three camps—the Pile Bridge Party, the Suspension Bridge Party, and the Pontoon Bridge Party. Though they were in agreement at the outset that they wanted a bridge, their unity would be shattered by the arguments of the experts, with the result that while they were fighting each other over this question, they would get no bridge at all.

NEW DEMOCRACY

Now that is very much like the situation we have in this country regarding post-war reconstruction. Because the experts disagree, the people are agreed on the results they want in post-war Canada, they are hopelessly divided on how we should make a start now to establish that new democracy, but they are hopelessly divided over the details of methods.

Actually the people, as the supreme constitutional authority under our democratic system should not be concerned with methods. They should state the results they want from the management of their affairs, and hold those who carry out the actual administration of legislation, of finance, of industry, and of commerce responsible for getting those results. If they fail to do so, the people should be able to penalize them by changing the administrators.

The people are united in regard to the kind of post-war order they desire Mr Manning continued. If they will organize themselves, elect as their representatives me not integrity under their effective control, demand that they act in clear definite terms, and insist on obedience to their wishes, there is no power in the world which can stop them from getting what they want.

The proper methods to give them the necessary results will very quickly be devised — particularly when the war has proved that almost the impossible can be achieved if we have the will to do it."

I am speaking to you tonight in the absence of Premier Aberhart, to whose stirring messages on post-war reconstruction so many of you have listened with intense and justifiable interest. I regard it as a high privilege to discuss with you some further phases of the vitally important questions which confront us as citizens of Canada when we look into the future in these troubled and momentous times. I am convinced that the issues at stake are greater than any of us have yet begun to realize, and I am equally satisfied that never in the whole past when every vestige of public lethargy should have been dispelled and all our people fully awakened both to the seriousness and to the magnitude of the issues which are before us. And this because the people of Canada for any indifference that may yet remain at this late date. It is not their fault if they have not been fully informed of the grim facts. As the facts are put before them, and the whole picture begins to take form before their eyes, there is no question as to what their reaction will be. Canadians have never been slow to act, once a clear cut issue is before them.

LOCKED IN STRUGGLE

We all know that civilization itself today is locked in a life and death struggle with a ruthless foe. Our very existence is at stake thousands upon thousands of our finest young men are offering their lives, if necessary, that all which we cherish and hold dear shall not perish from the earth. No matter how long and how grim the struggle may be, and we must be prepared for it to be both long and grim, we of the United Nations, all have absolute and justifiable confidence in the ultimate and complete victory of our arms. The valiant men and women of our fighting force are out to finish the job.

But what of the home front? Those who are forced by circumstances to remain at home likewise have a job to do—a fight to win. In addition to seeing to it that the men of the armed forces are adequately supplied with all the necessary munitions and materials of war, ours is the task of laying now, the foundations for the new era that will follow the successful conclusion of hostilities.

Let no man minimize either the importance or the magnitude of that task. Let us never forget that it is possible to win the war, but lose the peace. The experiences of 25 years ago should make every Canadian grimly determined that this time we will not permit a repetition of the conditions that followed the last war. If that is our determination, then the time to act is now. Unpreparedness for peace is

Aussie Airman Likes Good Stew

Kangaroo stew is really good, especially when it's made of young kangaroo, PO Bill Roberts, of the Royal Australian Air Force declared during a recent visit here. Since completing his course in this country he has been ferrying planes to many parts of the world including Australia, the United Kingdom and North Africa.

During his visit here PO. Roberts was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Stark, 10230 103 avenue at whose house he often stayed while he was training at the air observers school here. He likes Edmonton so much that he takes every opportunity to come back here.

Since he started ferrying, he has been to New Guinea transporting troops but this was not his first visit to that island for he once lived there for four years on a gold mining expedition.

One one occasion he and his fellow airman, who was also prospecting for gold travelled over part of the island taking 14 days through the jungle to travel a distance that they had flown over in 45 minutes.

Meatless Days On C.N. Diners

MONTREAL, May 11.—Judging by the experience of the first meatless day, dining car services of the Canadian National Railways will save approximately five thousand pounds of meat every Tuesday. This figure is given on the authority of W. W. Swinden, general superintendent of sleeping and dining car department of the railway.

Mr. Swinden states that a close check was made during last Tuesday and figures compiled from the various divisions show that at least two and a half tons of fresh meat ordinarily would have been consumed by travellers using the dining, cafe and buffet cars throughout the Canadian lines.

"On the basis of the first meatless Tuesday, savings of at least twenty thousand pounds a month are indicated," said Mr. Swinden, "so that for the fifty-two meatless days of a year the savings of fresh meat would represent about one hundred and thirty tons, a substantial amount from one source."

To replace meat on the dining car menus, the railway chefs are centring their meals on poultry, fish, egg dishes, macaroni and spaghetti and the summer season will find a wide variety of salads available to travellers on the National system.

Don't Let This Be On YOUR CONSCIENCE

MANY TIMES in the early days of this war, battles were lost and lives were sacrificed because there was "Too Little Too Late". No words could be more tragic. They must not be heard now.

Canada's armed forces are fighting our battles. Shall we at home fail to give them every possible support? They left their jobs, their homes, their friends for the discomforts and dangers which are ever present, prepared if need be to make the supreme sacrifice. Are we going to let them down? Are we going to increase the dangers . . . multiply the hazards . . . prolong the struggle because of "Too Little Too Late"?

Our big job right now is to put over this fourth Victory Loan. The need is greater than ever. It's unthinkable that we should falter or fail.

A lot of money to raise? Sure it is. But it can be done. It must be done. Have you gone the limit? Or, could you stretch the budget by a greater effort; by real self denial, by postponing the purchase of something you would like now but could wait until the time when you can buy with a clear conscience?

Canada needs every dollar you can lend.

There is still time for you to do your full part. Maybe it's your own son, or your neighbor's son, brother or husband who is depending on you. Don't let them down at this critical time.

Kiwanis' Aims Are Outlined At Luncheon

"We are one generation from the pioneers," J. A. Ching, chairman of the educational committee, Kiwanis club of Edmonton, told members at their regular meeting and luncheon held Monday at the Macdonald hotel. "We need to remember the courage of our fathers," he said, adding that the Kiwanis had made a "favorable impression on the world at large."

In Kiwanis, he continued, you can look back with the pride of accomplishment. It has not been a peaceful lifetime, he said, but it had been interesting. There has been progress in every human endeavor. The progress in transportation has made the world a smaller place.

It must have been a discontented man who "discovered" the Kiwanis, the speaker told his listeners, for the original idea was not sufficient. "It takes a lot of living to make a house a home, but in the end comes a realization of desires.

OUTLINE OBJECTIVES

In an unrehearsed program, Mr. Ching, with the assistance of club members, in a question and answer discussion, sought to clarify in new members' minds, the meaning, aims and objects of Kiwanis clubdom. The work of each officer, the duties of committees and directors, were explained, and opinions offered.

Winners of war savings certificates, offered as prizes in the recent birdhouse competition sponsored by the club, were present to receive their prizes. Presentations were made by Roy Henry.

In the girls' class, for the best natural and practical house, the $5 war saving certificate was handed to Lorraine Robertson, 11 years old. For the most unique bird-dwelling, William (Bill) E. Buckley, 17 years old, won in his class. An "open shelter" type of construction won a certificate for Keith Walker, while living with him for the best workmanship, was Raymond Yuill, who also received a prize.

Practical bird-house, the work of Walter Manchuk, was highly praised. He was awarded a war savings certificate for his efforts.

Two new members were received into the Kiwanis Club, while eight members, who came from as far north as Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, south from California and east from New Toronto, were also present and introduced.

The musical portion of the program was a highlight of the meeting, with Sgt. Harold W. Cluff, R.C.A.F. and Betty Sims contributing.

400 Entries For Roller Skating

DETROIT, May 11.—(AP)—For five days started today, some 400 lithe performers will be trifling with the laws of gravity in the sixth annual tournament of the roller skating rink operators association.

High class roller skating has become such a particular proposition that the judges at a tournament shade their decisions down to tenths of a point. It's definitely an art now.

The tournament here has a coast-to-coast entry list with challengers from Seattle to New York City. Present men and women speed champions are Louis Mirrelli of St. Louis and Dorothy Law of Dayton, O. Fancy and figure skating titles also will be awarded.

Soviet Troops Close Pincers On Novorossisk

By M. S. HANDLER

Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

MOSCOW, May 11.—Russian infantry, advancing with the support of a heavy artillery barrage, broke through German defences northeast of Novorossisk today and captured an important hill near the Black Sea naval base.

The Red Army brought up its big guns and began a systematic destruction of concrete emplacements and pill boxes deep in the Axis defences of their Kuban bridgehead in the Western Caucasus. The infantry quickly filtered through the blasted areas.

OPEN FINAL DRIVE

It appeared that the Soviet Army had launched a final major drive toward Novorossisk, the most important city still in Axis hands on the Taman peninsula.

German artillery replied to the Russian guns.

(The Berlin radio claimed today that the Russians had lost 474 planes during the week of May 2-8 against German losses of 36 planes)

The Germans opened an infantry and tank attack in the Lisichansk sector of the Donets Basin southeast of Kharkov but reports from the front said the enemy failed to recover positions lost earlier.

(The Paris radio was quoted in a London broadcast as saying the Russians had effected a "large scale" landing near Novorossisk, intensifying the threat to the key Axis strongholds in the Caucasus.)

Panicky Retreat

Famed Nazi Shock Troops Run for Lives in Tunisia

By DANIEL DE LUCE

GROMBALIA, On Cap Bon, May 10.—(Delayed)—(AP)—Hitler's famous shock troops became a desperate rabble, running for their lives into the hills of Cap Bon peninsula or surrendering in thousands to the British 1st Army today.

The collapse of the once proud German divisions rivals that of their scorned Italian satellites.

All morning I have raced forward with the armored scout cars and seen the amazing spectacle of the German army humbled in the dust of a panicky retreat.

LITTLE FIGHT LEFT

Only a few artillery men are making any sort of resistance to the 1st Army. Five thousand German infantrymen surrendered in the last four hours to one armored brigade.

I have just entered Grombalia and six miles away on the left, the little town of Soliman also has been captured.

Four grenadiers who said they had come from the Russian front to Africa last December came up and asked me to accept their surrender.

"We are kaputt (ruined)," declared a grimy-faced blond sergeant who towered above my own height of six feet three inches. "We have no food, no munitions, no benzine."

IGNORED BY BRITISH

The four stood in the whirling white dust of the main highway as their guns abandoned and little blanket bundles slung over their backs while passing British armor ignored them.

"You must march to the prisoner-of-war stockade at the junction," I advised them.

Further on a lieutenant-colonel formerly accepted the surrender of a German major and all his surviving junior officers and men. Military police clambered into a captured German half-track troop carrier and escorted a column of 200 toward the rear.

"Would you like to ride?" asked the colonel politely.

"Thank you," the major replied in good English, "but I should prefer to march with my men."

GERMAN STRATEGY

The German command obviously had hoped to stall off the British forces at Hammam Lif, a picturesque Moslem village on the plain a half-mile wide between the hills and the Mediterranean.

Tanks swept through this gap nine miles southeast of Tunis in a 10-hour battle yesterday, outflanking a line of German 88s by sending one squadron along the sandy beach.

It was strictly an armored show. No British infantry was used today.

This morning the armored advance guard swept forward nine to 13 miles as the enemy defence collapsed in a mad rout.

SUPPLIES INTACT

Huge stocks of military supplies were found untouched in the warehouses of big vineyards near Grombalia and Soliman.

In their frantic haste the enemy failed to blow up any bridge or to lay a single mine.

Large parking lots filled with undamaged enemy vehicles are scattered in the fields and the hills to the right of the main highway.

Many mobile 88 guns have been abandoned but usually only after their breeches were smashed by explosive charges.

Refugees and carts piled high with bedclothes and pots and pans were returning to their shell-pitted homes.

"IT'S ALL OVER"

A black-bereted British general who was studying his maps in the turret of a Sherman parked on a steep and rocky hill above acres of green vines told me:

"It's all over, there isn't going to be any Axis Dunkerque. A few tough chaps are still fighting, but most of the enemy now is giving in."

It had been a hot morning, drenched with African sunshine, and the hungry general was just about to eat his biscuits spread with peanut butter.

The wireless in a tank began sputtering and I could hear the cool, oxonian accent of some squadron leader reporting from his patrol.

"Quite an interesting story here sir," the voice said. "We have met a British soldier who was captured and disarmed last night. This morning, he says, the Germans gave him back his rifle. Now he is here with 200 Germans who surrendered to him."

British Losses Total 10,800 In Three Weeks

By ROBERT DOWSON

Copyright, 1943, by British United Press

LONDON, May 11. — British casualties totalled 10,800 in the last three weeks of the Tunisian campaign, Deputy Prime Minister Clement R. Attlee disclosed today.

Attlee, in a statement following a brief secret session of commons, said that the First Army casualties were 8,400 since April 17.

Eighth Army casualties between April 20 and May 3 were "just over" 2,400, he added.

Commons went into its short secret session upon the motion of Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden. The subject was not disclosed, Eden deeming it "inadvisable" to make the matter public.

CAPTURE 50,000 MEN

Attlee's statement on casualties followed.

Attlee estimated that since May 5 a total of 50,000 prisoners, most of them Germans, had been captured and added that this number is "continually increasing."

The African campaign, he said, was a "practical example of allied co-operation," in which victory was achieved not only by military and naval co-operation but by Anglo-American domination of the Air.

"Difficulties of supply and the long line of communications have not always been realized," Attlee said.

Air support of the ground operations, he added, was a "factor of utmost importance in achieving success."

"THUNDERBOLT" DRIVE

The final First Army push into Tunis covered 30 miles in 36 hours, he revealed.

In the words of General Alexander, it was a real thunderbolt," he said.

The casualties of the First Army in the final attack were estimated at 1,200, Attlee said.

"Considering the scale of our attack and the tenacity of the enemy's defences they have not been too heavy," he said. "The battle has gone well. It is still too early to say how long it will last or to speculate on the enemy's hope of resistance or escape but I think one can say that with no large towns or ports on which to base themselves, with only Cap Bon peninsula in their hands, their prospects are bleak.

They have in front of them our victorious troops, above them our air force and behind them only the beaches and the sea dominated by our naval and air forces."

CHUNGKING, May 11.—(AP)—American airmen destroyed at least 16 Japanese planes in a 15-minute running battle during the United States raid on Canton Saturday, a communique from Lt.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters said yesterday.

The communique said that five other enemy planes probably were destroyed and two were damaged. One U.S. medium bomber, with its crew, was reported lost in the action.

The communique said the 14th Air Force attacked the Tien Ho and White Cloud air bases at Canton.

4 Killed, 63 Hurt In Plane Mishap

SAN DIEGO, Calif., May 11.—(AP)—Four persons were killed and 63 injured yesterday when an army experimental plane crashed and burst into flames in the recruit but area of the United States Marine Corps base.

The dead included the pilot of the plane, R. A. McMakin, and three marines.

Seven civilian employees of Consolidated Vulett Aircraft Corporation were aboard the plane, and all but McMakin, manager of Consolidated's flight department, were rescued from the flaming craft and taken to hospital.

Witnesses at Lindbergh field said the plane was unable to get into the air after a run and smashed through the marine base into a group of temporary buildings and burst into flames.

Expect to Meet Farm-Labor Needs

OTTAWA, May 11.—(CP)—Under an expanded federal-provincial farm labor program it is hoped the help necessary for Canadian farm production can be provided, Labor Minister Mitchell told the House of Commons yesterday, answering a question from Gordon Graydon, Progressive Conservative leader.

Mr. Mitchell said that last year agreements for joint action were made with six provinces but this year they were made with all provinces.

Last year the program cost $164,000. This year it would cost more than $500,000.

The agreements provide that all costs of transporting help to farms and other costs except those of moving workers from one province to another will be shared equally by the Dominion and the province concerned, said Mr. Mitchell. Facilities of the Employment and Selective Service officers would be used in the program and an agricultural employment adviser would be appointed for each employment region.

During April, 1943, the number of passengers carried on the system was 2,368,128 compared with 1,668,644 for the same month last year. This is an increase of 52 per cent.

Mr. Ferrier stated that patronage of the "civil" street car service was continuing to meet operating expenses, with patronage holding steady despite the advent of spring weather.

Logging, Mining, Farming in B.C. Given Priority

VANCOUVER, May 11.—(CP)—The Daily Province said in a news-page story yesterday that logging, mining and farming have been given war priority over shipbuilding in British Columbia by Selective Service.

The paper added that to meet the desperate need throughout the province of loggers, miners and farmers Selective Service has ordered four Vancouver shipyards to release men in these trades. Several hundred former loggers have already been lost from the yards turning out steel cargo ships.

Burrard Drydock Company yesterday received the order from Selective Service for 60 loggers, in addition to 79 who have already left voluntarily and by order.

Walker, (right), Ottawa, first member of the Women's Division of the Royal Canadian Air Force, is welcomed by Section Officer Nancy McArthur (left), of Calgary, on her arrival in Britain to command the women of the Canadian Bomber Group. In the centre is Section Officer Frances A. Service, of Toronto, who was also in the latest and largest contingent of W.D.'s to arrive in Britain.

From London these youthful Canadians went to the various stations of the Canadian Bomber Group which is making a large contribution to the steady aerial pounding of the Axis.

Rattlesnake Pen

Hitler's main hopes of forestalling an invasion of Europe have been staked upon his fleet of U-boats. He has always believed that if he could sufficiently hamper the movement of men and materials from the New World to the Old he might be able to sit behind his fortifications and hold out against the United Nations until they had bled themselves white in an effort to muster a great army, transported across thousands of miles of ocean. Shown here is one of the few photographs made of the famous bomb-proof U-boat pens the Germans built in an effort to escape the might of our air force. A sub-commander stands on his bridge as the craft noses into its berth. The roofs are constructed of steel and concrete many feet thick. The scene is from "Invasion of Europe," the latest National Film Board release in the World in Action Series. The new documentary film weighs the chances of invasion at various points along the continent's great coastline.

DARK JUNGLES

By JOHN C. FLEMING AND LOIS EBY

CHAPTER XXIV

THE formidable Indian waited for no reply. Even as Barry scanned the short note, he whirled, ran down the steps and across the clearing at a jogging trot and disappeared into the jungle.

Barry handed the note to Lila and Allison. Allison gasped.

Lila's drawl held a note of pride. "So the chief wants you to come back and talk business. You must have him sold, darling."

But Allison was frightened. "Moncha Suma still blames you for the death of that Indian girl!" she cried. "You had to escape. Why should he invite you back unless—"

Barry nodded, a quizzical eyebrow raised above his grin. "Sure —Will you come into my parlor? I thought of that, of course. But Moncha Suma seemed a straight shooter."

"You can't take that chance!" Allison cried frantically.

Barry's grin faded. He said quietly, "I can't take the chance of losing those mines."

Lila smiled at him and said softly, "I know how you feel, dearest. I think you should go. If he'd wanted to kill you, he could have given that messenger a poison arrow instead of a note. Why lure you into his country to do away with you?"

"What about Hall?" Allison flashed out. "He hasn't come back, has he?"

Barry patted her shoulder as he turned to go into the house. "Is that imagination of yours on the rampage again?" he chuckled. "Hall is probably back in New York by now."

Allison came into Barry's room later as Lila finished packing his saddlebags. She glared at the tall, serene girl so calmly checking his supply of dry socks, underwear and atabrine tablets.

"You shouldn't let him go, Lila!" She tried one last burst of protest. "This is the third day of his fever. It will be raging tonight! If he'd only wait until Renaldo comes back tomorrow or the next day—!"

"I might offend the chief permanently," Barry cut in.

Lila smiled fondly at Barry. "I don't think Allison quite understands you, darling," she murmured, "if she thinks I could influence you when duty calls."

"Don't worry about me." Barry was collecting flashlight, briefcase and gun holster. "I've arranged for tonight's fever to be postponed."

He kept up his bantering until the packing was finished. "And who wants a guide anyway," he argued lightly. "Even if one of your Indians would go with me he'd probably die of fear before he got there."

But when they went down to the enclosure, they found a small, wiry Indian waiting beside two saddled mules.

"Tony," Allison introduced him briefly. "You saw him this afternoon. The sick boy's father. He was willing to go."

Barry saw fear and the slavish light of devotion struggling in the Indian's eyes as he looked at Allison. He said sharply, "No! He'd be your slave an watchdog from now on. I'd feel like a louse if he went and something happened to him."

"Nothing's going to happen—is it?" Allison's cry was a sharp, fearful challenge.

"Of course not," Lila murmured soothingly. Barry kissed her goodbye. But it was Allison's white, strained face that he kept seeing as his mule jogged behind Tony's through the sweltering afternoon heat of the jungle path.

After an hour or so the rain came again. It drummed down relentlessly for a blinding space, and was followed by the steaming closeness of dank jungle air. For a while Barry thought it was the clouds of steam rising from the soggy path that were blurring his vision—making the form of Tony's mule funny and indistinct.

Then gradually he knew it was not the steam. He lifted a hand to his forehead and felt the burn of fever. Relentlessly it had come back for its third day! He fought off a sudden fear. Maybe, he told himself, it would be a light siege today. He'd had a bad time of it yesterday. Probably just easing off today. He didn't feel as rocky.

But despite his brave words he knew he did. He felt worse. His head seemed to swell, to ache with a grinding tension of a tooth being drilled. At intervals an explosion seemed to tear through it with the shock of blasting. At these times Barry would grip the mane of his jogging mule and hold on while the jungle rocked about him and flashes of light shot through a wall of darkness rising up around him.

His throat was parched. His hot, aching body cried for comfort. It seemed an enemy, fighting his frantic determination to go on.

"No you don't!" he shouted. "You're staying right on this mule. You've got a little fever. So what? You can wear it out travelling as well as lying still, can't you?"

Gradually he was less conscious of the pains. He didn't realize this was because he was less conscious of anything. His tortured body, the jerking saddle and beast beneath him, the hot, twilight gloom of the jungle trail had resolved into a nebulous, undifferentiated mass of torture. The effort by which he clung to the mane of his mule was wholly reflex.

He didn't know that it was dark. Or that Tony came back to him alarmed by his babbling. But he heard the traitorous words.

"You are sick, senor! We must go back!"

He roused then, and with painful effort brought the Indian's outline into focus. He tried to frown commandingly.

"No."

The Indian's hand touched his forehead. It felt cold against his burning skin.

"You must have much care tonight," the man's voice rang with anxiety, "or you will be sick many more days."

The frustration of many days burned in Barry's dim thoughts. Vague fury raged through him. Another enemy—trying to keep him from his meeting with Moncha Suma!

He thought he was shouting. But all strength had drained from his body. His voice was a thin whisper.

"I'm all right. Go on!"

He lifted a hand in a gesture of command. And suddenly the blackness swept over him. He fell forward over the neck of the mule, his arm hanging limp almost to the ground.

"The gods be merciful," murmured Tony.

Chamber of Commerce. John Blue was a pioneer in the true sense. His illustrious son is now specializing in the art of destroying Nazi locomotives.

In other words he's one of the many R.C.A.F. train-busters. In poor visibility F/O. Blue and F/O. D. M. Grant of Watrous, Sask., damaged nine locomotives and four parked aircraft in a 35-minute sweep. Blue is credited with hitting two engines and peppering a group of German soldiers near a gun emplacement.

Grant had even better luck, shooting up seven locomotives. Four of them blew up, he reported.

And just for good measure he damaged four parked enemy fighters with gunfire.

Yes, the sons of Edmonton and Alberta pioneers, have the same spirit as their fathers in large, even more generous quantities.

On the anniversary of the German invasion of the Low Countries three years ago, Hitler and his henchmen must well reflect with sorrow over the present course of events.

The Italians will likely be the first to feel the true and terrible weight of massed Allied air assaults. Weather over the Mediterranean for most of the summer is much better than in the north of the European continent. Those long pauses while impatient bomber groups await good flying weather, so tantalizing in the north, should be absent for the Mediterranean area.

It should be a noisy summer in the Italian "cradle of civilization."

mendations to the fuel controller with a view to having all coal mines in Canada assisted to a greater extent with their manpower needs and that a far-sighted long-term policy be outlined and made definite enough so that the coal business can be treated as an essential business.

"Also that the coal business receive benefits with regard to the return of capital and long-term policies to enable its securities to take their place in our Canadian economy along with the gold mine shares, and industrial securities; and also that the government recognize the right of the coal industry to adequately support its workers and the various municipalities in which they live on a basis comparable with the average in Canada.

SECOND MOTION

The other motion sponsored by Ald. James H. Ogilvie reads:

"Whereas the division of the legislative field between the Dominion and the provinces of Canada has been a large contributing cause of the slow economic and social development of Canada and has resulted in municipal and local governing bodies assuming burdens that would more properly fall upon the provincial and federal governments;

"And whereas the war is emphasizing the need for and the possibility of social security for all, and whereas the responsibility of re-establishment of our military forces and the creation of conditions necessary to the speedy re-absorption of them as well as large number of civilian war workers into peacetime industry can not be effectively met without constitutional amendment, and whereas the Rowell-Sirois report, if implemented in its practical aspects, would largely remove the constitutional impediments to sound and progressive economic and social development;

"Therefore be it resolved that this conference of Mayors of Canadian cities strongly urges upon the government of Canada that it call, at a convenient time during 1943, another Dominion-provincial conference for the purpose of, as far as practicable, implementing the Rowell-Sirois report, and that a copy of this resolution be sent to the premier of each of the provinces of Canada."

BUILDING SURVEY

Ald. Mitchell gave notice of motion also that "an immediate survey be made of city-owned property with a view to imposing building regulations in certain areas, and that in the meantime the commissioners be instructed to insure that the proposed use of lands will not conflict with likely restrictions." This motion will be debated at the next council meeting.

Council approved the request of the commissioners that Mayor Fry and C. H. Grant, K.C., represent the city at the meeting of the Canada-Alaska-Prairie Ruote Highway Association to be held at Regina on May 21 next.

Unanimous endorsation was given the resolution moved by Ald. C. E. Gariepy seeking the construction of all-weather highways to the Peace River territory.

TEXT OF RESOLUTION

The resolution reads: Whereas the people in the Peace River have never had good roads and have reason to complain, and whereas, with the opening of the Alaska Highway and the heavy traffic going north these roads have been shown to be in poor condition, it is moved that the provincial government be requested to make all possible efforts to improve these roads, and to prepare plans now to give the Peace River are. all-weather roads at the earliest possible time."

Break in Comic Sequence Due to Delay in Mails

Due to a delay in the mails, four of The Bulletin's daily comic strips, Hugh Striver, Gasoline Alley, Orphan Annie and Moon Mullins, did not arrive Monday, and therefore were missing from their accustomed place on the comic page. However, with the exception of Hugh Striver, these have now been received and appear today as usual. MONTREAL, May 11—With approximately two thirds of their objective of $5,300,000 for the Victory loan already realized and sales continuing at a brisk tempo, Canadian Pacific employees ended the second week of their campaign determined to "back the attack" to the utmost and to uphold the personal trust of their 16,000 colleagues now serving in the active armed forces.

NEW YORK, May 10.—(AP)—Some department stores, in a move that tends to meet one of the major excuses given for absenteeism, have set up branches in war plants. Others were said to be planning similar steps to take their goods to workers who otherwise might take a day off to shop.

Nazis Claim Three British Warships Hit by Torpedoes

LONDON, May 11.—(CP)—The German-controlled Paris radio broadcast a report from La Linea, Spain, today that three British warships were torpedoed yesterday near Gibraltar.

The Rome radio broadcast a Lisbon, Portugal, dispatch that survivors of a United States 10,000-ton ship, bound from New York to Casablanca and sunk in the Atlantic a month ago, had been brought to land by a Portuguese trawler.

Selling Reduces Chicago Futures

CHICAGO, May 11—(AP)—Heavy selling on the part of traders who were in a position to take profits just before the close today, converted early gains of as much as ⅞ cent in wheat into losses of more than a cent.

The early upturn was associated with the bullish interpretation placed on the government crop report issued after the close yesterday, but grain men said more favorable conditions since the compilation of the report led to the belief that the winter wheat crop might be increased by several million bushels over the May estimate.

Weakness in rye helped to accelerate the downturn in wheat.

Wheat closed ⅞ to 1¼ cent lower, corn was unchanged at ceilings; oats were ½ to 1½ down and rye lost ⅝ to 1 cent.

Winnipeg Wheat Makes Light Gains

WINNIPEG, May 11—(CP)—Wheat prices registered fractional gains on local routine buying on Winnipeg Grain Exchange today, the May closing unchanged at 98¾ cents a bushel, the July ⅛-¼ higher at 99⅝-½, the October ⅛ higher at $1.00¼ and the December ⅛ higher at $1.01.

Offerings were light and were quickly absorbed by mills, shippers and commission houses. Some spreading was reported, involving purchases of the May against sales of the July.

Export sales ofCanadian wheat to the United Kingdom were estimated at 300,000 bushels.

Cash dealings were at a minimum with only carlot quantities of low-grade wheat selling to eastern feeding interests and some quantities of cash oats and barley going to shipper account.

In the coarse grain pit American houses took around 750,000 bushels of May and July oats at ceiling prices. American buying absorbed all offerings in rye futures and prices in this commodity climbed more than one cent at the high point of the trade.

Grain inspections at Winnipeg yesterday totalled 341 cars compared with 560 a year ago. ountry marketings amounted to 370,000 bushels against 238,000 last year.

Oil Policy Is Announced by Federal Firm

CALGARY, May 11.—(CP)—Wartime Oils Ltd., federal government concern, will charge 3½ per cent interest on money advanced for oil drilling in Alberta and will collect a small gross royalty on production. The policy of the company was announced by the board of directors, yesterday, after a meeting with Federal Oil Controller G. R. Cottrelle.

The board approved several applications for financial assistance from companies which plan to develop oil acreage and the applications were approved, subject to completion of the necessary agreements. Everything possible will be done to get these operations under way immediately, the board of directors announced.

DIRECTORS NAMED

The directors are Judge A. A. Carpenter, Edmonton; Col. L. D. M. Baxter, Winnipeg; A. H. Mayland, J. Grant Spratt and K. J. Morrison, F.C.A., Calgary. Judge Carpenter was elected president, Mr. Spratt vice-president and Mr. Morrison, secretary-treasurer.

Major C. J. Stewart was appointed field manager. Major Stewart, who retired some years ago, was formerly in the oil business in Alberta as a sales engineer of oil equipment and later connected with the drilling of one or two wells.

The appointment of Mr. Morrison, prominent Calgary accountant as treasurer is a new addition to the board of directors.

Judge Carpenter is former chairman of the Alberta Public Utilities Board. Col. Baxter is general manager of Osler, Hammond and Nanton. This company manages Calgary and Edmonton Corp., Security Assets Ltd., and the Ross Estate, which between them control the major portion of acreage on the west flank of Turner Valley. It is understood that wartime Oils Ltd. is particularly interested in developing this acreage in which private capital has shown little interest.

VALLEY OPERATOR

Mr. Mayland, prominent Calgary oil operator, is president of Gas and Oils Products, Ltd., operating a refinery and absorption plant in Turner Valley; and Mr. Spratt is vice-president and managing director of the Anglo-Canadian Company, a Turner Valley drilling and producing company.

The royalty, decided upon by the board of directors is one-half of one per cent on the first $25,000 advanced, or any part thereof, plus a further one-quarter of one per cent on each additional $12,500 or any part thereof.

The board made no statement as to whether the Wartime Oils Ltd. gross royalty would come ahead of a leaseholder's royalty or not.

Wednesday Morning

To save a man struggling in the river, you wouldn't throw a rope that was too short, would you?

That is actually what you do to your country . . . and to your country's sons who are fighting for it . . . when you give less than your greatest effort to this Fourth Victory Loan.

Half-hearted support on your part could mean . . . that the air force loses because of too few planes . . . that the convoys are sunk for lack of battleships . . . that armies are defeated because of too few tanks, too little equipment.

That must never be the indictment against us, that we valued our dollars more than our fighting men . . . that we threw too short a rope.

Though we cannot be in the fighting line, we can show our eagerness to do our duty if we "Back the Attack" with every dollar we can muster.

$1,100,000,000 is needed. Don't throw a short rope . . . throw one long enough or too long!
